200 Participate in March In Protest against Rape

In the chill bluster of Monday evening, over 200 men and women joined the "Take Back the Night" march sponsored by the Women's Center at Princeton University whose members are concerned about rape and do not feel the University has provided enough security

Singing "We Shall Overcome" and carrying tighted candles and flashlights, the marchers moved from Cannon Green, behind Nassau Hall, through the gardens of "Prospect," down Prospect Avenue to Harrison Street, and back to the Woodrow Wilson School. There, speakers talked about the social and psychological effects of rape on a woman

One of the organizers, Princeton senior Marianne Sanua, said, "A man is free to walk around at night and I'm not. Nobody would ever dream of saying to a man who had been mugged and threatened with murder, "Why didn't you relax and enjoy it?"

The University has a student escort service, but women students reportedly have not been using it.

"The primary problem is that the service isn't used as extensively as we'd like to see it used," says Alfred Terry, associate director of security.

Women faculty members, also concerned, have met with administrators and made several suggestions. They propose a campus bus service which would run through the night on a regular schedule; better lighting; re-planting of shrubs to eliminate hiding places and a 24-hour emergency telephone service, staffed by trained personnel.

Borough Hopes to Introduce Hospital Zone Ordinance

The hospital will give up its right to build the present five-story "J" building to 10 stories, in return for a hospital zone, Borough Mayor Robert W. Cawley told reporters this week.

He said the Borough hopes to introduce its hospital zone ordinance in January. The Township must pass one, also, because the Medical Center straddles the municipal line.

It was in 1963 that the hospital obtained the necessary use variance and bulk variances for a ten-story "J" building. There were no plans to build

Township Needs Answers to Several Questions Before Proceeding with Dinky Area Project

Township Committee took a long look last Wednesday at the Hillier Group conceptual plans for the Dinky area development and came up with a series of questions which will have to have answers before the project proceeds.

Among the questions are:

- Should housing be a part of the development plan?
- Can the existing roads support the amount of office space and commercial and retail establishments that will be needed to generate income for the running of the Dinky?
- How can the area best be utilized as a transportation center?
- If a traffic analysis is made, who will do it, and who will pay for it?
- Is an aerial survey needed to clear up confusion over exact property lines before proceeding with the land swap that Borough, Township and University officials seem to agree on as a prerequisite to leasing squared-off parcels of devetopable property to potential developers?

With the aid of what he calls three-dimensional massing diagrams, as well as a model layout of the entire area, Edward Wilson of the Hillier Group discussed, plan by plan, six possibilities for development under conventional zoning, using the Central Business District requirements as a model.

Housing units in various quantities are a component in each of the plans, whether as an 11-story high rise residential tower, or placed above office space, or arranged as configurations of townhouses. Mayor Josie Hall commented that high-rise towers are not "aesthetically popular" in Princeton.

She also pointed out that housing does not generate as much income as offices do and could incur additional development and maintenance costs as well as place burdens on municipal services. Mr. Wilson agreed that a residential option is a key question because housing presents a different configuration of building and different standards of security and lighting. The saleability of housing units close by raitroad tracks was also questioned.

It was also agreed that a traffic study is an imperative next step. Committeeman William Cherry said he would like that study to include parking and train access as well. He and Township Engineer Watter Wheeler pointed out that a significant number of on-street parking spaces now used by commuters in the daytime and by McCarter patrons

District 6 Machine Opened; Hearing This Wednesday

When the crucial District Six voting machine was opened Tuesday morning for the long-awaited recount, it showed "001" registered in the "yes" column for the garage referendum. The "no" column showed the 54 votes reported election night.

During a 20-minute breakdown of the machine on election day, emergency ballots were used. The recount showed six of these with "yes" votes and none with "no." This narrows the anti-garage victory from 86 to 81 votes: 1,366 to 1,285.

This Wednesday, James Britt, attorney for the pro-garage group (The Committee for the Heart of Princeton) will go before Judge Samuel D. Lenox Jr., assignment judge of Superior Court. He will ask Judge Lenox to set a date for a hearing when all the parties to the question may comment on the pro-garage request for a mechanical inspection of the machine. Mr. Britt said he hoped for an answer from Judge Lenox, and perhaps even the inspection of the machine, by the end of this week.

A representative of the voting machine company, Anthony Ginello, was present at Tuesday's recount. Mr. Britt proposed to representatives of the anti-garage group (Dollars and Sense) that the inspection be done at that time, while Mr. Ginello was present and the machine open.

However, Orren Jack Turner, of the anti-garage group, said he did not want inspection to take place without a court order. The anti-garage group's attorney, Alan Wallack, is in England. John Miller, of the group, said Mr. Wallack had asked that no action be taken, if mechanical inspection seemed likely, until he returned.

Mr. Britt, who said he had not known Mr. Wallack was away, suggested that another member of Mr. Wallack's law firm might act in his absence. Mr. Britt said Mr. Wallack's secretary told him she did not know when Mr. Wallack would return.

On election night, it was reported that there were two "yes" votes for the garage in District Six. Mr. Milter said Tuesday that Mr. Ginello told him there was no way the machine could have registered two votes. Mr. Miller says, therefore, that the pro-garage group picked up a net of only five more votes in the recount, because one of the two recorded election night must have been on an emergency ballot. Mr. Britt says this is still in question.

Whether there will be another vote on the garage, either throughout the Borough or only in District Six, is open to to speculation and none of the principals would comment. The pro-garage group has over 100 affidavits from voters in District Six stating that they cast "yes" votes for the garage. Of these, 83 were submitted to Judge Lenox at the time the pro-garage group requested the recount.

Those present at the recount were, for the pro-garage group, Harriet Bryant, Lucy Mackenzie and Mr. Britt. The anti-garage group was represented by Mr. Turner, Mr. Miller, William Rodweiler and Ruth Plum. Penelope Carter represented the Borough.

Hospital Plans

ten stories immediately, but footings and walls were built to support a structure that high.

"In 1963, nobody asked whether, if building were done before the zoning ordinance was adopted, the hospital had a permanent right to the 10 stories," the mayor remarked.

"We can only buy it back from them with a legal agreement when the zone is set up, and the hospital agrees to this," the mayor said.

The Medical Center, as it is now, needs a variance of one kind or another for everything it wants to do. A "Hospital Zone" would eliminate that.

The mayor pointed out that the Borough's chief interest is in the "J" building, which the hospital plans to increase to seven stories.

Hospital and municipal officials have been talking about a step-back arrangement, which would require an 11-foot set-back on a building, for every 11 feet it goes up.

The Borough is also interested in the hospital's announced plans to grow, over the years, from its present 250-bed size to a 400-bed institution. The floor-space increase is a slightly smaller percentage than the bed increase.

"This is the maximum they would ever build," the mayor stated.

Collins' Design for Chambers Street Garage Will Be Presented to Planning Board Thursday

The 582-car garage Collins plans for Chambers and Hulfish, design almost complete, will be presented to the Planning Board in formal public hearing this Thursday at 7:30 in the Valley Road Building. Collins' revised site plans are also on the agenda.

Now that plans are moving, Princeton will be seeing more of a tall, handsome, quiet man named John Williams (Princeton University, Class of '65, graduate degree in architecture, '67) who is vice-president of the Constitution Construction Company, project manager for Collins' Palmer Square expansion plans, and the man who will co-ordinate design and construction as it all moves along.

"The garage is very nice," Mr. Williams says. "If it doesn't win an award, I'll be surprised. It's designed to blend with the traditional, town-gown atmosphere of Princeton, with high, peaked Gothic forms, lots of brick, well-lit."

After approval for the garage, Mr. Williams will put its final design, working drawings and construction out to bid. The company that wins, he explains, may or may not be the construction manager for the overall expansion of the Square.

In any case, this construction company — acting almost like a consultant on a fee basis — will bid out the work, co-ordinate all aspects of the work as it proceeds, and report to Mr. Williams.

The "lantern" building, opposite the post office, may be started this summer, Mr. Williams said. Everybody hopes it will be in place in time for Christmas shopping, 1982. It hasn't yet been decided what the "lantern" will be used for.

"Projects are often started before the designs are complete," he explained. "You're designing and bidding in components — all under the supervision of the company that wins the bid."

With undergraduate and graduate degrees in architecture, Mr. Williams has spent most of his professional life as a contractor. He joined Turner Construction in 1972 and remained with them nine years, serving as their manager of business development.

He has built, for example, Warner Lambert's addition to its corporate headquarters in Morris Plains, and finished off the galleries in the addition to the Museum of Modern Art in New York. As manager of business development, he sold Turner's services to hospitals, corporations, developers.

"I'm a registered New Jersey architect, but I've also built several buildings, and this is an unusual combination. Now, I'm learning real-estate development."

Although Collins cannot start the addition to the Nassau Inn or the office building until the garage is finished, design of the new hotel is proceeding.

Work is also moving ahead on plans to renovate the inside of the "Nass," developing merchandising plans to incorporate existing retail shops with newcomers, and of course, financing.

"I intend," says John Williams, "to be very involved. I've been over the whole Palmer Square complex, and I've come to know it well."

PARKING, DRAINAGE

In EDRC Cases. Questions related to drainage, run-off and a detention facility led the Environmental Design Review Committee Monday night to send the 37 Wiggins Street parking lot to the Planning Board.

The lot was built by the owner of the property, Gerald G. Silvester. At Monday night's meeting, neighbors once again protested vehemently against its construction.

In other business, the EDRC gave site approval to William A. Bittinger for conversion of 45 Vandeventer from a one-family dwelling to a three-family unit. Mr. Bittinger said he did not yet know whether the building will be turned into apartments or condominium units. He shows a four-space graveled parking lot.

Grace Lambert's plans to slice off three two-acre parcels from the Lambert estate of approximately 90 acres, will now go to the Planning Board. The lots, in the Township's R-1 zone, all face Rosedale Road, off Provinceline.

Township engineer Walter Wheeler has recommended that requirement for a storm detention facility be waived, but this will be in the hands of the Flood Control Committee and, ultimately, the Planning Board.

Princeton University received permission to convert storage areas in Blair Hall to 21 dormitory rooms. The new space would relieve over-crowding; it would not be used for additional students, University spokesmen said.

$25,000 REFUND DUE

On Princeton Tax Appeal. Princeton Ridge has won a tax appeal for 1979 and 1980 amounting to $25,363.55 which the Township must refund.

The amount represents an overpayment of taxes on six lots, plus interest of 5 percent per year. The Township Committee authorized the refund, which will be charged against surplus, at its meeting last Wednesday.

In other business, Township Engineer Walter Wheeler announced that the reconstruction of the sidewalks and curbs along John and Race Streets, and one block of Birch Avenue, will be postponed until the spring.

The contractor experienced delays due to weather, Mr. Wheeler said, in the reconstruction of sidewalks along Leigh and Birch Avenues, Race Street and the portion of John Street that lies in the Township. Leigh Avenue, and all but one block of Birch Avenue, have been completed, and rather than tear up the streets yet to be done and run into freezing conditions when concrete can not be poured, Committee authorized the delay until spring.

Mayor Josie Hall announced the appointment of John Bales to the board of trustees of the Public Library. Mr. Bales, who is currently serving as president of the Friends of the Princeton Public Library, succeeds Conrad Snowden, board chairman, who is resigning.

GIRL, 13, ACCOSTED

On University Campus. A 13-year-old Barough girl was accosted on the Princeton University campus Saturday night while walking near Prospect Gardens. Palice said the girl was walking about 8:30 in the evening when she was accosted by a man who had been fallowing her. He grabbed her, police said, and began to ask her questions. At the same time, he allegedly pulled a knife from his rear pocket.

While he was questianing her, Chief Michael Carnevale reported, someone came along and the victim was able to walk aff unharmed. When asked, Chief Carnevale said he knew the naturc of the questians but dcclined ta reveal that information.

The suspect is described as white, in his mid 20's, 5-7, medium huild, with shart dark hair and a thin maustache. He may have a hair lip, police said. He was wearing a windhreaker and ski goggles.

The investigatian is being cantinued by Det. William Clark.

Township paiice reparted Tuesday that they have na new ieads in the assault af the university graduate student wha was knocked fram her bicycle by her assailant and then taken to a nearby field and raped.

Certain features af the suspect in that attack and thase af the suspect in the attack on the 13-year-old girl overlap, but the rape suspect is black.

Car Registration Expire in March? Re-Scheduling to Reduce Long Lines

If your car registration expires in March, you know what it's like: endless lines at inspection stations.

The Division of Motor Vehicles announced this week that it will re-schedule both drivers' license and passenger car registrations due to expire in March, 1982. The plan will remove about 360,000 passenger car registrations from the month of March, and re-assign them for renewal over an 11-month period starting next September, and continuing through July, 1983. Renewal fees will be pro-rated on a monthly basis.

In addition, the plan will transfer about 200,000 drivers' licenses due in March, to the month of December. These drivers will renew by mail between January and March, 1982, for a period of 33 months — until December, 1984. A comparable number of drivers will do the same thing in March, 1983, for renewal in December, 1985.

March is a crowded month because most of the state's 895,000 commercial vehicle registrations expire at that time, the Division of Motor Vehicles explained. The new program will leave March almost entirely to commercial vehicles.

While some relief can be expected this coming March, most of the benefits will begin in March, 1983, as the workload begins to be spread out, the agency said.

criminal court last week, Judge Sydney Souter fined Darrell C. Newlin, 230 Birch Avenue, $250 for assault and ordered him to pay $25 to the Violent Crime Compensation Board — mandatory in all assault convictions.

In addition, Newlin received a 30-day suspended sentence to Mercer County Jail and was sentenced to one year's probation in his parents' custody on the condition that he attend AA meetings at Borough Hall.

Glenn A. Larson, 41 Juniper Row, was fined $250 for theft.

In traffic court, Balfour A. Merrill Jr., 14C Greenbrier Row, and Joseph Thomas, 65 Redding Circle, were fined $50 and $40 respectively for speeding. Fined $40 each for careless driving were Kenneth L. Verbeyst, 376 Carter Road; George J. Prendergast, Forest Avenue, and Alfred B. Vuocolo, 66 Hickory Court. Mr. Vuocolo was also fined $40 for leaving the scene of an accident.

Borough Court. In Borough court Monday, seven Princeton area residents were fined by Judge Russell W. Annich Jr.

Fined $35 each were Barbara M. Lawrence, 177 Library Place, stop sign; Roberta K. Fendrich, 122 Gallup Road, careless driving; and Carolyn Adams, Holly House, leaving the scene of an accident.

Others: Cezary Wisniewski, 1013 Pheasant Hollow Road, Plainsboro, $20, no license or registration in possession; Nancy J. Pardy, 18 Mill Brook Lane, Lawrenceville, $20, speeding; Michael E. Doyle, 5 Meadow Lane, Pennington, $25, improper turn, and Edward J. Barna, Featherbed Lane, Hopewell, $15, no license or registration in possession.

ON THE SQUARE...

Signs of Christmas. The sound and spirit of Christmas will be abroad in Palmer Square during the next few days, as choral groups sing the favorite old songs, and Santa himself brings his ho-ho of good cheer.

Santa will make three pre-Christmas visits to the Square, setting up his headquarters in the vacant 46 Nassau store. He will be there this Saturday and next Saturday (December 12 and 19) and next Wednesday, December 16, from 11 until 3 each day.

This Wednesday at 5 p.m., the members of the First Baptist Church will sing in the Square. This Thursday, half an hour later, Princeton University's Archangels will sing, and this Friday — also at 5:30 — the choirs of the Princeton United Methodist Church will bring their Christmas message. This Saturday at 1 p.m., the Christmas singers will be members of the Junior Choir of the American Boychoir School.

THEFT REPORT

Cars Are Targets. Car tires, hubcaps, batteries and stereo cassettes were a favorite target of thieves last week.

Two cars were parked in the Princeton Medical Center lot off Franklin Avenue. A Princeton resident reported that a $300 car stereo and a CB radio valued at $125 were taken from her car on Sunday. Two days earlier, a Kendall Park resident told police that an AM-FM cassette stereo and a carrying case with 15 tapes had been taken. In both instances, police said, the cars had been locked but the thief had used a device to enter them.

CELEBRATE, THIS SUNDAY: Because Sunday, December 13 is St. Lucia's Day, the start of the Scandinavian Christmas season, and because Scanticon-Princeton is known for Scandinavian treats, there will be a "Festival of Folktales" at Scanticon this Sunday at 3. Creative Theatre Unlimited will present its "Festival" which includes a Scandinavian Christmas story, an Armenian tale of winter and a Hanukkah tale. Traditional cookies and punch will follow. Proceeds will benefit CTU's outreach programs. Wendy Benchley, right, president of the CTU board and Joanne Coppola, CTU trustee, are making final plans with Tom Barker (left) and Willie Schuhmacher of the Scanticon staff. Reservations are required and may be made at 924-3489.

Four wire-wheel hubcaps valued at $500 were removed from the Lincoln of an East Windsor resident while it was parked in a lot last week at the rear of the Nassau Club, 4 Mercer.

While a Philadelphia resident was attending a basketball game in Jadwin Gym last week, someone removed the front wheels and tires of her car parked in Lot 21. They are valued at $300.

Police said that the victim returned to find the front axle of her car resting on the ground.

For the second time within a month, someone kicked in a panel to enter the Township garage on lower John Street and steal a $60 battery from a leaf machine.

The unlocked bicycle of a university student was stolen last week from a rack on Prospect Avenue. It is valued at $100.

A Lawrence Township resident on Friday reported the theft of her wallet from her teacher's desk at Princeton Day School — she lost $7 and credit cards — and a Forrester Drive resident listed on Monday the theft of her $35 wristwatch from her gym bag in a clothing change room at the Princeton Ballet studio on Alexander Street.

In the Borough, an envelope containing $57 in receipts was stolen from a desk in a YMCA office. Police said the money was from various Y events.

TEA SERVICE STOLEN

From Nassau Street Home. A silver tea service valued at $600 was stolen between 8 and 10:15 Thursday morning from a Nassau Street home. Also taken were a $400 pair of silver candle holders and an antique wooden table worth $600.

Police said that the house was entered through an unlocked door.

More than a thousand dollars was stolen during the night from the Chevron service station on Route 206 and Cherry Valley Road. The theft was reported Sunday morning.

According to police, someone entered the station

Dinky Area

at night would be lost through development and in the realignment of University Place.

The Dinky agreement with the state specifies that 150 parking spaces be provided for commuter use, and the Hillier Group has included parking garages with above and below street level parking to accommodate cars from the proposed building use. With some 183,000 square feet of office space envisaged, that could mean 495 cars at one space per 370 feet of office space. Ninety-five housing units would require still more spaces.

Mr. Wilson recommends Garmen and Associates as the traffic, parking and train access consultants because this firm has already made a traffic study of the downtown area. What happens in the Dinky area is expected to have an impact on the Central Business District, and vice-versa, and Mr. Wilson suggested that a traffic study that takes in both places would be advantageous.

Committeeman David Blair pointed out that once the agreement goes into effect by which the two municipalities have to come up with $50,000 annually for the state for the operation of the Dinky, the traffic plan "had better say that we can do this."

Aerial Study Needed. Mr. Wilson reported that there are discrepancies between the Township tax maps and Princeton University maps of its lands. He recommended an aerial survey be conducted to resolve the differences before the land swap agreements are made. This survey, and the traffic study, will require additional funds from the two financially pressed municipalities which expected the project "not to cost the taxpayer a nickel."

As a departure from the usual zoning regulations, which are a verbal description of what is permitted to occur on the land, Mr. Wilson suggests that the Township and Borough consider graphic depictions of where buildings can be built and to what size and shape. He says that the actual configuration of development can be controlled more tightly in this way than in conventional zoning.

Other questions raised by Township Committee included the elimination of the grade crossing at faculty road and whether or not both portions of the area—the squared off government-owned land right by the station and the tracks and the University-owned land—including the Wawa Store—have to be developed simultaneously. It was pointed out that the Planning Board has recently given approval to an office building on the site of the Boice Lumber yard, on Alexander Road, which was granted a drive-in bank but denied medical office usage.

Mr. Wilson was scheduled to make a similar presentation to Borough Council members this Tuesday. Council member Richard Magill has suggested a committee of citizens, similar to the Borough's Steering Committee, of neighbors and citizens who were instrumental in the planning of the Central Business District.

Mr. Magill thinks that McCarter Theatre is a "prime neighbor" to the Dinky area and should be involved in the planning. He and Richard Schoch, soon to take his seat on Township Committee, will assemble some names and make recommendations to their respective governing bodies about whom to appoint.

office by using a key, broke open a desk drawer and removed two bags containing $50 each. In addition, $1,053.97 which had been pushed through a slot in a safe, is also missing. Police said that the thief somehow managed to fish the money out through the slot. Ptl. John Petrone Jr. investigated.

A stereo system and a tape recorder with a combined value of $700 were taken last week from a home on South Harrison Street. Entry was gained by forcing a rear window, according to Ptl. William Potts, who responded to a 5:30 call Thursday afternoon.

Forty-five minutes later, Sgt. Robert Heacock responded to a call from a North Harrison Street resident reporting a theft. A cellar window on the northwest side of the home had been kicked in to gain entry. The entire home was searched and a storage room was ransacked, police said.

Stolen were a table television set, a large number of pennies and an undetermined amount of flat silverware.

There was an attempted entry earlier in the week in a home on Broadripple Drive.

The occupant told police when she returned home at 9:20 in the evening after being away since 1 p.m., she discovered an eight-inch window in a recreation room door had been broken and the inside door latch unlocked. Police said, however, that there was no entry into the home.

Princeton Regional School HIGHLIGHTS

What is student government?

A group of Princeton High School students got together last spring to try to answer this question, and although their answer — Student government is students helping students — is not terribly profound, its application has led to a series of changes for the better at PHS.

This same group of students examined their student government with a critical eye and drafted a new Student Council Constitution to address the problems of organization, procedure, and responsibility to the student body. This fall, the new constitution was ratified by the student body and faculty, and in the process, a whole new image of the Student Council was projected.

Any student who shows interest and involvement may join the Student Council, and over twenty have, making it a more representative body than ever before.

And yet, it is not a group of students who get together every few weeks to play government. The administration respects the Student Council, and because of this, many old ideas have come into action.

A vending machine supplies soda and fruit juice to athletes after practice. The Student Store, established three years ago with the help of the high school P.T.O., now sells candy, nuts, and fruit to students after school.

Two former classrooms have been converted into a Student Center, which was recently furnished. A student-run "radio station" will soon broadcast music, news, and sports information into the area.

In response to the number of recent thefts of bicycles from the high school, the Student Council has worked with the administration in establishing a safer area for bicyles and mopeds, and has urged those who brave the winter cold to use the area.

A phone directory of all students was compiled by the Student Council and distributed to all students, and Council members finally fulfilled an old campaign promise to order mirrors for the lavatories from Council funds.

Recently, in response to a poll conducted by the student newspaper, the Student Council recommended that an honor roll be established at PHS. Though no list will be made public, each student with at least a B+ average will be individually recognized for his or her scholastic achievement. This, however, is awaiting administrative approval.

Also in the offing are plans to establish a program to teach younger students in the district about the hazards of drug and alcohol abuse and plans to increase student involvement in the high school's orientation program.

So, what is student government? At Princeton High School, it is students helping students, with words, with actions, and most importantly, with hard work.

On "Family Life."

The original meeting place has been changed for the next public meeting on designing Family Life Education for Princeton's public schools. Interested parents, citizens and school staff are invited to gather next Monday at 8 p.m. in the cafeteria of John Witherspoon Middle School, on Walnut Lane.

Speakers will talk about the experiences of other New Jersey communities that already have the state-required Family Life Education programs. They will be Lawrence Ondrejack, curriculum director for the Montgomery Regional Schools, where a Family Life program has been followed for ten years and is a recognized model; Madeline Trevor, health instructor from Matawan-Aberdeen Regional Schools and Dr. Joseph Darden Jr., from Kean College, who has been a consultant to many schools in the areas of Family Life and health education.

wick house painter, and his family, who become convinced that there is something wrong with their drinking water. Vegetables cooked in it turn a funny color, skin lesions appear after bathing in it. The health department runs tests but insists that the water is safe.

that his well has been seriously contaminated by the dumping of toxic wastes in the landfill adjacent to the Kaler property. And it is on this landfill site, according to Ms. Switzgable, that she and her cameraman were assaulted while filming dumping operations.

A graduate of Princeton High School and Boston University who took an intensive course in film-making one summer at New York University, Ms. Switzgable met the Kaler family and filmed the documentary over a three-year period. She also raised the money from the New Jersey Committee for the Humanities and about a dozen other groups, including the St. Andrews Mission Fund of Nassau Presbyterian Church, Commodities Corp. and the Center for Analysis of Public Issues.

"In Our Water" has been accepted for a showing at the Berlin Film Festival this winter. It is also endorsed for the world premiere by such notables as Senator Bill Bradley, Dick Cavett, Ralph Nader, Paul Brodeur of the New Yorker magazine and Dr. Peter Montague of the Hazardous Waste Research Program at Princeton University.

Ms. Switzgable says there are some 50,000 sites across the United States in which industry has improperly been disposing toxic chemicals and hazardous wastes. Most of them are either leaking into ground and surface waters now or may be expected to leak in the near future. She filmed the story of one man's struggle to get his water tested and to obtain safe drinking water for his family as a way of alerting the public to what she considers a serious state and national problems.

LEWDNESS IS CHARGED

To Trenton Man. A Trenton resident, Robert Rue, 19, who allegedly exposed himself to two young women last week on Witherspoon Street, has been charged with lewdness by Borough police.

The victims gave police a description of the suspect, who later turned himself in at police headquarters.

DRIVER LOSES CONTROL

Attempting to Elude Police. A Virginia Beach resident lost control of the 1969 sedan he was driving on Route 27 near the intersection of River Road at 1:05 Monday morning as he was attempting to elude pursuing South Brunswick police.

Clifton L. Krahenbill, 27, was charged with reckless driving and being an unlicensed driver after his car

"I'm Jack DeStefano of STS, and when you've worked with as many tires as I have, you know there's more to a tire change than just a lug wrench and an iron. Today's tires, particularly those new Bridgestone radials, are precision-made and take some high-precision tools to mount them properly.

"For example, every radial must be dynamically balanced–so at STS we use the best balancing equipment in the business every time we put on a radial for you.

"There are lots of little things about a good tire change, too. When your tire is removed, the hubcap is placed over the lug nuts polished side up to avoid scratches. And if your car has mag wheels, we'll mount tires by hand instead of using power equipment to protect your wheel investment.

"And, of course, since we want you back again as a customer, we'll sell you the best tires your money can buy. Like the Bridgestone steel-belted radial snow tires.

"I have to give you a better tire change–because I'm an owner and my business depends on your business."

crossed over three lanes, left 145 feet of skid marks, struck the curb and traveled another 56 feet before striking a guard rail. It came to rest on its right side.

The car's roof had to be cut away before the First Aid Squad could remove the driver, who was treated at Princeton Medical Center for head injuries. Police identified the owner of the car as Bernard F. Gobel of Linden. Ptl. John Petrone Jr. investigated.

Pedestrian Hit by Car. In the Borough, 20-year-old Heidi A. Noeltner os 133 Jefferson Road was struck by a car which failed to stop as she was waiting to cross Nassau Street near Chestnut.

Ms. Noeltner was standing in the roadway at 6 p.m. Friday, when a full-sized, rust-colored or maroon car — possibly a Chevrolet — passed her and struck her left knee.

The victim, who did not report the accident until two hours later, was interviewed by police in her home. She refused a police request to transport her to the Medical Center.

"SAMARITAN" CHARGED With Theft, Harassment. An apparent Good Samaritan, who told an Edwards Place resident Sunday that he was returning a wallet which he had seen her drop, has ended up being charged with theft and harassment.

According to police James G. Tilton, 43, of West Windsor had observed the victim drop her wallet as she was carrying packages on University Place. As she approached her home on Edwards Place, he confronted her and told her that he was a university security officer. He had seen her drop her wallet, he said, and was returning it to her.

As he gave her the wallet, he allegedly tried to force his way into her apartment. Denied access, he left the area.

The victim, who later in checking discovered that $10 was missing from her wallet, provided police with a description. Tilton was observed the following morning at Nassau and Witherspoon Streets by Ptl. Michael Taylor, who stopped him.

As a result of the police investigation, Tilton was charged and released after being issued a complaint summons. He is scheduled to appear in Borough court January 20. The $10 was recovered, police said.

At 5:15 a.m., the same day that Tilton found the wallet, he had been arrested and charged with trespassing by the university for loitering at the 7th entry to Patton Hall. Police said that Tilton had been given previous warnings about trespassing by university officials.

Student Is Charged. Victor Ruterbusch, a resident of Blair Hall on the university campus, has been charged by Borough police with tampering with a motor vehicle — his own.

Police said that after officials of the University Store had requested Ruterbusch's car be towed from the store's parking lot by a wrecker from Griggs Corner Service station Thursday evening, Ruterbusch and several of his friends went to the station.

They allegedly pushed several cars out of the way, damaging one, to reach Ruterbusch's car which they then pushed back to the U-Store lot. Police said that Ruterbusch agreed to pay for damages to the car parked at the station.

TREES ARE FELLED

By High Winds Sunday. Borough police reported three incidents of trees or limbs down as a result of high winds Sunday morning.

At 11:12 a.m., a tree in front of 30 Harrison Street split, part of it coming to rest on Public Service wires and part on another tree. Five minutes later, there was a report of a limb down in front of 283 Nassau Street. At 11:49 a.m. a large tree on Evelyn Place split, causing the trunk to fall on the roof of a 1969 Volkswagen.

VANDALISM CONTINUES

Parked Cars Targets. Vandalism to parked vehicles continues to occur every week in Princeton.

In the Borough, an out-of-town resident parked her car in the Witherspoon lot and when she returned the following morning discovered that the car's antenna had been broken off and numerous scratches made in the paint with a sharp instrument.

A van parked in the Valley Road School building lot had its ignition switch and dashboard damaged by a screwdriver sometime during a 10-day period. Police identified the owner as the Lewis Clinic of Educational Therapy.

A Birch Avenue resident, when he arrived at his car parked in front of his house one morning last week, found both outside mirrors and the antenna broken off, the trunk lid lock broken and large scratches on the side of the car.

More fortunate was a Lawrence Court Apartment resident, who had parked and locked her car in the north section of the complex parking lot. In the morning, she found it had been moved to the south section, left unlocked but not damaged.

When a Greenbrier Row resident went to his parked car Tuesday morning, he found an obscenity sprayed on it with white paint and the left front door scratched.

Vandals also visited a tree house on Littlebrook Road—apparently two juveniles who had been seen in the area. Police said that two double-hung windows, valued at $100 had been damaged, and three gallons of red stain ($54) had been spilled throughout the tree house.

MORE MONEY NEEDED

To Continue Suit. Martin P. Lombardo, co-chairman with George Pinelli of the Princeton Borough and Township Tax Revolt Committee, has scheduled a meeting Saturday morning at 9 in the basement of St. Paul's Church. Mr. Lombardo urges all contributors and would-be contributors to the tax revolt suit to attend.

At issue is whether or not the group will continue to proceed with the suit to have the Township and Borough property revaluations overturned. Mr. Lombardo says that a minimum of $8,000 is needed to continue the suit. A vote will be taken at the meeting on whether to press forward with the suit or to withdraw.

He says that because of the pressure his group has been able to bear, "a lot of people have received tax relief and are satisfied." They no longer are as interested in seeing the whole revaluation thrown out, he says.

OPEN HOUSE SET

In Rocky Hill. The Rocky Hill Community Group will hold its annual Christmas Open House in the Community House on Washington Street on Sunday, from 3 to 5.

All members of the community and friends of the Group are invited to participate in this seasonal get-together. Poinsettias will be on sale, and refreshments will be served.

BENEFIT GAME SET

To Aid SIDS Foundation. The Princeton area Junior Women's Club, in cooperation with the New Jersey State Federation of Women's Clubs, will sponsor a basketball game between the New York Giants and the Philadelphia Eagles Saturday, Feb. 6 at 2 at the Rutgers Athletic Center in Piscataway to benefit the Sudden Infant Death Syndrome Foundation, New Jersey Chapter.

The deadline for ordering tickets is next Wednesday, Dec. 2. They can be purchased by calling Joanne Crain of the Princeton area Junior Women's Club at 201-329-6505. Cost is $4 for adults, $2 for children 12 and under.

The SIDS Foundation has been chosen by all 130 Junior Women's Clubs in New Jersey as their state project for the 1981-82 year. Funds raised from the basketball game and from other events throughout the year will help establish the first Infant Apnea Evaluation Center, which will monitor and identify infants in the high-risk catagory for SIDS.

NEW TOWN GROUP

Civic Association Forming. A new town-wide civic association to be known as "CAP" — the Civic Association of Princeton — is now in process of formation by a group of approximately 30 whose members, so far, have declined to identify themselves. A public meeting is promised for the near future.

According to an advance release, CAP is being formed to involve the community in tax assessments, zoning, water supply and sewerage. In addition, the group will examine the ways land rezoning affects taxes on individual properties, "the misinformation" on current property record cards, and the possibility of arriving at a "fair formula" for evaluating both commercial and residential properties.

CAP also proposes formation of a committee within the New Jersey Legislature "to investigate the tax situation in the Princetons."

A spokesperson added, however, that the new group is also interested in community affairs like the Art People parties, in a center for the performing arts and cultural events for both adults and children.

Through conversations with the Chamber of Commerce, CAP hopes to make a link with the business community, in the belief that there is not enough business-community liaison at present.

The spokesperson suggested that the group, whose members would encompass the entire community, and not just a neighborhood, could do research and even opinion polling, when public questions arise.

PUBLIC INVITED

To Historic Sites in Candlelight. There will be a Christmas Candlelight Open House Sunday from 2 to 5 at Rockingham, George Washington's headquarters in 1783.

The house will be decorated in 18th century fashion for Christmas by members of the Stony Brook Garden Club. Colonial music will be played throughout the afternoon by Louise Topp, music instructor at Princeton Day School, and Susan Oldham of New Brunswick. Refreshments will be served in the "kitchen house." Rockingham is on Route 518 between Rocky Hill and the junction of Route 27.

Also reminiscent of Princeton's historical heritage will be four Candlelight Afternoons at Clarke House on Saturday and Sunday from 3-6 this weekend and December 19 and 20. Clarke House, which will be decorated by members of the Dogwood Garden Club, is off Mercer Street at Princeton Battlefield Park.

When you buy your kid a Thrasher™ or Phantom™ BMX, your Schwinn dealer will do just about everything but pedal.

Any department store will sell you a BMX. But frankly, BMX bikes aren't always their department.

What to ask before you buy a BMX	Schwinn Dealer	Some Discount/ Department Stores
Bicycle carefully fitted?	Yes	Good luck
Expert assembly and adjustment?	Yes	Some charge extra
Free 30-day tune-up?	Yes	Are you kidding?
Parts and accessories available?	Yes	Maybe
No-Time Limit Warranty?	Yes	In some cases

And you can save a few bucks on a discount store BMX. But there's a chance you might spend a few bucks assembling it, too.

Happily, there's still a place where you can find the bicycle your son or daughter wants with the service you need.

The sign out front says "Schwinn."

The quick Thrasher and responsive Phantom are perfect ways to get your kids into BMX without getting taken for a ride.

The Remarkable Schwinn No-Time-Limit Warranty.
Schwinn will replace any defective part. No time limit. No charge — except for dealer labor after 30 days or after a year in case of defective frame. See your Schwinn dealer for details.
SCHWINN®

Because your Schwinn dealer won't sell a bike if it doesn't fit perfectly.

Or if it's not assembled, adjusted, and ready to roll.

And he'll back it all up with a remarkable No-Time-Limit Warranty, part of Schwinn's exclusive 5-Point Protection Plan.

So if you're looking for a really good BMX for the money, go to a nearby Schwinn dealer. He'll do everything he can to make your kid's cycling as easy as possible.

Except perhaps, pedal.

WANT TO SERVE?

State Arts Group. If you would like to be one of the panelists who evaluate grant applications to the New Jersey State Council on the Arts, you're invited to send your own application to the Council, 109 West State Street, Trenton. 08608, care of Wendy McNeil.

Panelists who are chosen will evaluate applications for fellowships and matching grants in literature (poetry and prose), music, dance, theatre and playwriting, combined art forms, photography, film, video and visual arts. They will also evaluate applications from county arts agencies.

The Council will look over the resumes of those who want to be panelists, to make sure the final panel represents a diverse background within each art form, and broad geographic and ethnic representation.

Those chosen will spend two working days in Trenton in the period between February and June, 1982. There will also be outside work, involving a review of written applications, looking at slides, reading scores and listening to tapes.

If you are interested, you are asked to send a detailed resume to the Council, specifying the disciplines in which you feel yourself most qualified to serve as judge. Send in your resume by Friday, December 18. Final selection will be made in January.

MAGIC! CLOWNS!

In Chamber Benefit. A talking pony who can count her weekly allowance and tell time, a crew of roller-skating wizards who can probably count and tell time, too, but whose billing doesn't mention the fact, and a magician who can pull anything at all out of a hat, will be on stage Monday, December 21 when the Chamber of Commerce brings the Pan American Magic and Variety Show to town.

There will be two 90-minute performances: 5:30 and 8 p.m. Both will be in the auditorium of Princeton High School. Funds raised by the performances will be used for activities of the Chamber in the Princeton area.

Tickets may be purchased at the door, or from the Chamber of Commerce, 44 Nassau, 921-7676.

PROGRAM OFFERED

In T'al Chi Chuan. The School of Tai Chi Chuan will present a weekend of intensive training for new and advanced students on Saturday and Sunday. The program will take place at the Third World Center, at the corner of Prospect Avenue and Olden Street.

New students can witness a free demonstration at 2:30 Saturday afternoon, and may continue with classes both Saturday and Sunday afternoons. For more information, call The School of Tai Chi Chuan in Princeton, 737-2167.

The short Yang style of T'ai Chi Chuan as taught in Princeton consists of 37 positions connected in slow continuous movement which brings the entire body into balanced play. It has been described as a graceful dance-like form, healthful calisthenics, body awareness training, meditation in movement, and an effective self-defense art.

CHILDREN TO GAIN

From Wish Trees at Bank. The Princeton Area Junior Woman's Club is sponsoring Christmas wish trees in the three branches of Nassau Savings and Loan Association.

Each ornament will have an item written on the back. Patrons are invited to remove an ornament and purchase the article. They then wrap the gift and use the ornament as a tag.

Working with the New Jersey Division of Youth and Family Services, the Juniors will give these gifts to the children at the home for battered children. The children range in age from infancy to their teens. Some of the items requested are things that any child would love to have to brighten his world, but most of them are necessities to clothe them for school.

The wish trees are set up at the Princeton branch at 194

WORKSHOP ANNOUNCED

In Trager System. Trager work, a system of body manipulation, will be demonstrated and taught in an all-day workshop on Saturday, December 19 by Cathy Guadagno, director of the San Diego Trager Center.

The workshop is sponsored by the Holistic Health Association. Miss Guadagno, formerly of Lawrenceville, will introduce the Trager approach to body-mind work with an emphasis on gentleness and non-intrusion on the part of the practitioner. For information for registration and directions to the meeting place, call the Holistic Health Association at 924-8580.

REGISTRATION DUE

For MCCC Extension Courses. The Center for External Studies of Mercer County Community College will continue to offer courses during the spring term at The Jewish Center, the Senior Resource Center at Spruce Circle, and Mt. Pisgah Church, the site of the Mercer County Nutrition Project.

Residents of Mercer County who are 60 and over may audit the courses or take them for credit free of charge. Non-residents may also take the courses for credit, but will be asked to pay a tuition fee.

The course offered at the Jewish Center for the spring semester that begins on January 18 is the History of the Far East. It will be given on Mondays and Wednesdays at 1:30.

At Spruce Circle the Survey of American Literature, Part II, will continue on Wednesdays from 1 to 3:30. The history of music course begun in the fall at Mt. Pisgah Church will continue in the spring semester on Tuesdays and Thursdays from 10 to noon.

Did You Appeal Taxes?

If you filed a successful appeal from your new Borough assessment and thereby overpaid your taxes — you'll recall that you were required to have paid through the third quarter, in order to appeal — you'll get a refund at the end of the year, plus five percent interest.

Your preliminary 1982 taxes — the first two quarters — will be higher because they were based on the pre-appeal figure. The Borough will adjust these "manually" to the correct amount if you make the request no later than January 20, 1982. This is for householders who pay their property taxes themselves.

If your taxes are paid by the company that holds your mortgage, you should get your tax bill into the Borough Hall tax office immediately. These companies prepare their forms early.

Township policy in this matter is still under discussion.

Registration and information is available at all three locations.

NEW PHONE NUMBER

For League Study Participants. Those who are interested in participating in the Princeton Area League of Women Voters study on the whole question of abortion may call 921-8106 or 924-4281.

The phone number given last week is no longer a working number.

Phyllis Spiegel of Plainsboro was among 43 members of the Society of Humanistic Judaism who attended the first international conference of Secular and Humanistic Jews held in Israel last month.

The group had a visit with Israel's President Yitzhak Navon. In a departure from the usual brief formal reception for visiting groups, the President spent almost two hours with the Society's members at his residence, acquainting himself with the philosophy and practices of humanistic Judaism.

Lawrence Holofcener, of Canal Road, Griggstown, writer, sculptor and actor, currently performing in McCarter's "A Christmas Carol," has written a foreign language dictionary called "Britishisms." The 164-page paperback is a collection of words, phrases, and idioms that Mr. Holofcener has compiled and researched during his many trips to England.

He and his wife, Julia, are partners in Partners Press which is publishing the book, and will distribute it in time for the holidays. The book is being sold nationally through the British Bookstore catalogue, and by mail from the publisher.

Mrs. Ludwell Gilmer of Alexander Street was among the new members introduced to the Society of Mayflower Descendants in the State of New Jersey at its fall meeting in Plainfield. Mrs. Gilmer is a lineal descendant of Thomas Rogers, the 18th signer of the Mayflower compact.

Cynthia S. Griffin, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. James Q. Griffin of Hopewell, received the Field Hockey Award at St. Paul's School, Concord, N.H.

John A. McPhee, a nationally acclaimed writer and a member of the Princeton University Class of 1953, will receive his university's most distinguished alumni honor, the Woodrow Wilson Award, at the 67th Annual Meeting of the Alumni Association to be held on Saturday, February 20.

Given annually to a Princetonian who achieves distinction "in the nation's service," the award includes a citation, a certificate, and a check for $1,000. Mr. McPhee will be the 25th recipient of the award which was created by an anonymous gift in 1956, the centennial of Wilson's birth.

Mr. McPhee is recognized as

Dear Great Gift Advisor...

Dear Great Gift Advisor:
I work in a competitive shop nearby.
How can I give my boss one of your wonderful gifts without hurting her feelings?
Gifted by Untalented

Dear G.B.U.:
The joy of gift giving and receiving should be totally independent of the cost of an item and/or the place it was purchased. Remember, it is the thought that counts...so, if you really think you'll hurt your boss's feelings by giving a gift from a competitive shop...don't!

You still have plenty of time for a particularly skillful craftsman in an important genre which he personifies, the literature of fact. He is known as a person of uncommon integrity who insists on accuracy and precision in his work, who writes with power and grace, and who has resisted the temptations of commercialization. A highly respected and dedicated teacher, he holds a part time appointment to the University faculty as the Ferris Professor of Journalism and Public Relations.

Many in the field of arts and letters believe that John McPhee is today's outstanding writer of nonfiction. His two most recent books, "The Basin and the Range" and "Coming into the Country," have had an extraordinary effect on broadening the geographical horizons of scores of thousands of Americans, many of whom read his series in the New Yorker magazine, if not ultimately in book form.

Coast Guard Machinery Technician 2nd Class Nabil G. Hamdan, son of Dr. Hussein M. Hamdan and Dr. Barbara B. Hamdan of Cherry Hill Road, has been promoted to his present rank while serving at the Coast Guard Academy, New London, Conn.

He joined the Coast Guard in August 1979.

Jonathan F. Tenney, son of Dr. and Mrs. Frederick Tenney of 168 Hickory Court, performed in the Vassar College Drama department production of Shakespeare's "Cymbeline." A sophomore at Vassar College, he is a graduate of Princeton High School. He played the role of Guiderius (Polydore) for this production.

Navy Seaman Recruit Mark Alloway, son of Mary A. Alloway of 33 Willow Road, Lawrenceville, has completed recruit training at the Naval Training Center, Great Lakes, Ill.

A 1978 graduate of Lawrence High School, he joined the Navy in July 1981.

Ira Shull, a senior at Princeton Day School, has been cited for outstanding performance in writing. The National Council of Teachers of English has named him a winner of a 1981 NCTE Achievement Award in Writing. The NCTE writing contest is held annually beginning in January.

Over 7,000 students were nominated by their English teachers for the award. Each nominee submitted a sample of his best writing and an impromptu essay. These were evaluated by state judging teams of both high school and college teachers. The approximately 850 finalists selected each year represent high schools in all 50 states.

Jill A. Fonger, daughter of Dr. and Mrs. William H. Fonger of 174 Guyot Avenue, is a member of the Hendricks Chapel Choir at Syracuse University. This is a select group of 33 Syracuse students who sing regularly at Sunday services and give several special concerts throughout the year. Miss Fonger is a sophomore at the School of Management.

Two Princeton area residents are among 94 Bucknell students who are studying off-campus this fall. They are Patricia Metzger, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Howard Metzger of Monroe Court, and Maura Sohngen, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. James E. Sohngen of Beechtree Lane, Plainsboro, both of whom are studying in London, England.

Elizabeth M. McClelland of Pheasant Hill Drive was awarded a Bachelor of Arts degree at the ninth annual commencement of Thomas A. Edison State College in Trenton. Degrees are earned at Edison State College through transfer credits, examinations, and portfolio assessments. She is the wife of Dr. Richard L. McClelland and mother of three sons.

James Leech, son of Mr. and Mrs. John G. Leech of 305 Prospect Avenue, is serving as a teaching assistant for the Department of Politics at Ithaca College. Last year he was a teaching assistant in psychology, which is his minor. He is a Dean's List student and serving for the second year as student body president.

Hemsley Ganoe, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Charles Ganoe, 458 The Great Road, has been voted the Most Valuable Player on the 1981 women's field hockey team at Lake Forest College. She is a junior and in her third year of play on the team. Miss Ganoe is a 1979 graduate of the Shipley School in Bryn Mawr, Pa.

Peter J. Bearse, 110 Leigh Avenue, is co-author of a new book entitled "Services — The New Economy," published by Allanheld, Osmun Publishers. The book is an outgrowth of the Conservation of Human Resources Project of Columbia Univeristy, which has been exploring the transformations that are taking place in the economy of the United States.

Lack of Confidence.

To the Editor of Town Topics:

Thank you, my fellow Princetonians, for your response at the polls. Together we sent a much-needed message to Mayor Cawley and Borough Council. Our community expects sensitive leadership and accountability from its public officials.

It is obvious from the election results that Princeton Borough residents, Independents, Republicans and Democrats alike, are dissatisfied. The low voter turnout illustrates the lack of confidence in the leadership of both the Mayor and the Council.

Why, in a well-informed community, such as ours, where citizens pride themselves on outspokenness, did only 53 percent of the voters turn out in a major election year? Where are the other 47 percent? What has our government done to discourage these voters?

It appears that our message has gone in one ear and out the other because the Mayor and the Council are still not in tune with the pressures of the economy that face every resident and taxpayer in the Borough. For example, at the November Public Meeting, they tried to introduce a Bond Ordinance appropriating $12,000 for the purpose of hiring a consultant to study the use of SPACE in the borough buildings.

Doesn't it seem hypocritical for the Mayor and the Council to waste taxpayers monies on another consultant when our dedicated leaders cannot find enough money to fund the Rescue Squad Paramedics?

Because of the continued insensitivity of our governing body to the economic conditions of our residents, we must continue to fight. You are investing too many tax dollars in this community to turn your head. I am in the process of forming a Borough Watchdog Committee. Our immediate purposes are to stop Council from introducing ordinances such as the Space Study Ordinance, force officials to develop procedures which will give the community better notice and greater opportunity to participate in discussions on future bond ordinances or new expenditures, and to carefully scrutinize the 1982 budget.

If we wish to see Princeton remain a multi-classed society, we must not allow these wasteful expenditures that drive our taxes higher and our hard-working families and senior citizens out of their homes.

Won't you help? We need volunteers to attend the Council Meetings and monitor all proposals for new expenditures. People are also needed who will put pressure on the governing officials to develop new budgetary procedures, which will force them to be more accountable to the citizens. If the goals of our group mean anyting to you, please join us today. For further details, please call me at 921-7024.

My fellow Princetonians, our goals cross all political and socio-economic lines. If we are a caring community, and I believe we are, action is the only answer.

ARTISTS SPONSORED By Commodities Corporation. A Princeton-based company that believes corporations should function as patrons, not so much of the arts as of the artists themselves, is sponsoring an exhibit of 71 comtemporary American works, scheduled to open this Wednesday in Ft. Lauderdale, Florida.

Commodities Corporation has arranged to send its exhibit, after the Ft. Lauderdale showing, to the Oklahoma Museum of Art in Oklahoma City; the Santa Barbara California Museum of Art; the Grand Rapids (Michigan) Art Museum; the Madison (Wisconsin) Art Center and, in Alabama, the Montgomery Museum of Fine Arts.

Under the title, "New Directions in American Art," the exhibit consists of paintings, sculptures, drawings, photographs and a group of ten video tapes from the avant-garde collection Commodities has assembled in the past two years under the supervision of Sam Hunter, of Princeton University's art faculty. The collection focuses on "emerging" artists, still in the process of achieving recognition.

Part of the collection was shown in the summer of 1980 at Princeton University's art museum, and last winter at the Sidney Janis Gallery in New York. Reviewing the collection, the New York Times' critic wrote of F. Heimut Weymar, Commodities' president:

"He genuinely believes that corporations should function as patrons, not so much of the arts as of the artists themselves. He quite correctly perceives the young artist whose career is at its beginning, as the one most in need of encouragement. The en-

For a company whose business is trading commodities and securities to have purchased a very large assemblage of the newest art, often directly from the artist, struck this reviewer as an act of rare courage."

OPENS PRACTICE

In Psychoanalysis. Leland van den Daele, Ph.D. and Diplomat in Clinical Psychology, has opened an office at 20 Nassau Street for the practice of clinical psychology and psychoanalysis. Dr. van den Daele has more than 15 years' experience in psychology as a practitioner, teacher, lecturer and scholar.

His practice includes a variety of therapies, from crisis intervention to psychoanalytic psychotherapy to psychoanalysis. Consultative services are available to specialists in mental health professions, pediatricians, internists, educators and the clergy in cases where a psychological evaluation would be helpful.

Uncle Sam made it legal. Tucker Anthony makes it easy.

Introducing the 1982 Tucker Anthony Flexible IRA.

The 1981 Economic Recovery Tax Act makes it legal for everyone with earned income to open an Individual Retirement Account — even if you're already covered by a profit-sharing or pension plan.

You can open your Tucker Anthony IRA now and make your $2000 tax-deductible contribution on January 1.

Tucker Anthony's IRA has distinct advantages over other plans:

Flexibility — from individual stocks and bonds to managed mutual funds.

Low Cost — just $30 to open and $30 a year to maintain.

Control — you can switch your investments by a simple phone call to Tucker Anthony.

Cash Fully Invested — uninvested cash is automatically transferred to our daily interest money market fund.

Take advantage of the opportunity to build capital through your own tax-sheltered IRA. And, if you already have an IRA elsewhere, it's easy to transfer to Tucker Anthony.

For our folder "Your IRA in '82", return the coupon or call Stephen Jusick or Leighton Laughlin at 924-0314.

CHURCH LEADER DUE

To Speak at Seminary. The Rev. M. William Howard, Jr., the president of the National Council of Churches, will address the Princeton Seminary community on Tuesday at 7 in the main lounge of the campus center.

This convocation is under the auspices of the Association of Black Seminarians. Dr. Howard has just returned from China, where he led a delegation of American church leaders. He is a resident of Lawrence Township.

A 1972 graduate of the Seminary, Mr. Howard is executive director of the Black Council of the Reformed Church of America. He has been concerned with the political struggles of South Africa and the plight of Haitian and Cambodian refugees. He was one of three clergymen who officiated at Christmas Services for the hostages in Iran.

The public is invited.

EVENSONG PLANNED

At Trinity Church. The 3rd Sunday of Advent will be celebrated Sunday at 4:30 at Trinity Church with an Advent Service of Light and Choral Evensong sung by the Trinity Choir of Men, Boys and Girls.

Beginning in a darkened church and ending in a blaze of light, illuminating the Advent journey from darkness to light, this service will include music by Orlando Gibbons and Herbert Murrill sung by the 55 voice choir, as well as medieval liturgical plainsong and 19th century hymns sung by clergy and congregation.

The evening service for the "lighting of the lamps" is based on daily vesper services from Eastern Christian traditions, and Evensong is the traditional evening service of the Anglican tradition, still sung daily in British Cathedrals. Both services are a part of the recent Book of Common Prayer of the American Episcopal Church.

Participating in the service will be Trinity clergy, the Rev. Sarah H. Motley, The Rev. John Crocker Jr., and The Rev. Richard A. Bower. Evening lessons will be read by members of the Loyreaders Guild, and soloist will be Stanley Nevolla and Alfred Morosso. The choir will be conducted by James H. Litton, and organ accompanist is Irene Willis. Following there will be an evening of Christmas carolling.

The public is invited to attend.

SCHUBERT WORK SET

By Lutheran Church. The adult choir of the Prince of Peace Lutheran Church in Princeton Junction will present its annual Christmas musical offering, singing the Mass in G by Franz Schubert during the morning worship on Sunday at 11.

M. William Howard Jr.

Soloists will be Jan Frick, the Rev. Frederick Schott, Christy Sexton, Delores Stockbine, Paul Stockbine and Russ Winje. Jeannette La Bar will be the accompanist, and the Mass will be under the direction of Jan Oesterling, music director at Prince of Peace. Visitors are welcome.

CHRISTMAS MUSIC SET

At Nassau Church. The regular worship service on Sunday at 10 at Nassau Presbyterian Church will feature the presentation of two works highlighting the Christmas season. The adult choir will sing Daniel Pinkham's "Christmas Cantata," accompanied by brass quartet and organ, and "In Dulci Jubilo" by Michael Praetorious.

Mr. Pinkham is director of the New England Conservatory Chorus and director of music at King's Chapel in Boston. His "Christmas Cantata," written in the 1950's, evokes the mystery of Christ's birth in modern harmony and rhythm.

Michael Praetorious (1571-1621) is remembered not only as a composer but also as an early musicologist. His "In Dulci Jubilo" is based on the 14th century chorale known today as "Good Christian Men, Rejoice."

Kenneth B. Kelley, director of music at Nassau Church, will conduct the choir, Louise Woodruff will lead the brass quartet, and Brian Paul Thomas will be at the organ.

ADVENT ACTIVITIES SET

At Christ Congregation. Sunday morning worship services during Advent at Christ Congregation are intergenerational.

Children above preschool age are invited to join the congregation for the entire 10 a.m. worship service. They assist in lighting the Advent candles, presenting banners and collecting the offering. The services are led by the Rev. Mark Pickett and the Rev. Margot Pickett, co-pastors, and are followed by a time for refreshments and fellowship.

Each Sunday at 11:15 during Advent, Mary Baard, a student at Princeton Theological Seminary and a member of the Moravian Church, will lead a workshop exploring Moravian Christmas customs. This workshop is also inter-generational, and activities range from creating a Christmas putz to learning about Moravian Christmas candles and cooking as well as the Moravian love feast and star.

Christ Congregation is affiliated with the United Church of Christ and the American Baptist Churches. It is located near Princeton High School on the corner of Walnut Lane and Houghton Street.

LESSONS AND CAROLS

At Princeton University. A candlelight service of lessons and carols will take place at the University Chapel on Thursday at 8.

The service will include readings from the Bible, singing by the Katzenjammers, and dancing by Mary Adler, Tierney Boyd and B.B. Conger. Dean of the Chapel Frederick H. Borsch will deliver the meditation.

Several of the campus chaplaincies, including the Episcopal Church at Princeton, Wesley-Westminster Foundation, the Aquinas Institute, the Baptist Chaplaincy, the Eastern Orthodox Fellowship, and the Lutheran Concordia Society will participate in the ecumenical service. Graduate student Nathan Randall will be the organist.

After the service, there will be a reception in Murry-Dodge Hall.

BULLETIN NOTES

The Men's Association of Witherspoon Presbyterian Church will hold an old-fashioned Sunday morning breakfast Sunday from 8 to 10 at the parish house. A discussion on "Apartheid and the Church in Africa" will be led by the Rev. Samuel Butti, stated clerk of the Reformed Church in Africa.

The cost of the breakfast is $3 for adults and $2 for children. Tickets may be purchased at the door.

The Singles Fellowship Programs will hold a Newcomers' Inquiry session Thursday at 8 in the library of Nassau Presbyterian Church. There will be a $2 donation.

There are three groups operating under the Singles Fellowship Programs, which is the singles ministry of the Presbytery of New Brunswick. They are Y.E.S. Singles (Younger Singles Especially, for those in their 20's and 30's), Prime Time Singles for those 40 and over, the New Start Singles, widowed men and women. The groups are interdenominational and are designed for "the churched and unchurched."

For further information write Singles Fellowship Programs, 61 Nassau Street.

The Rocky Hill Reformed Church Genesis Singers will present the Cantata "365 Days of Christmas" by Robert Mantzke, on Sunday at 10. The choir is directed by Mrs. Deborah Cook and accompanied by Mrs. Alma MacDonald. The church is located on Washington Street and Reeve Road in Rocky Hill. The public is invited.

B'nai B'rith Women will present the film "This Very Special Place," narrated by actress Tovah Feldshuh, Wednesday, December 16 at 8:15 at the Jewish Center, 435 Nassau Street.

"This Very Special Place" is about the B'nai B'rith Women Children's Home in Israel and the boys who are helped there. Representing a cross section of Israel, Sephardic, Ashkenazi, urban and rural, rich and poor, the children are of normal or above average intelligence but have psychological disturbances. They receive individual attention, counseling and psychotherapy in a program that has been emulated by professionals in other parts of the world.

All are welcome. Refreshments will be served.

"THE CRY OF THE HOUNDS"

On a crisp fall morning in the years gone by, this sound could be heard from this beautiful tranquil valley farm in the Harbourton Hills of Hopewell township, "Harmony Hollow Farm."

A rare and exciting property set back on 42.5 acres, this charming old colonial was built for a life of grace and hospitality with large, well-appointed rooms, including 5 to 7 bedrooms, 2-room and bath maid's quarters, 5½ baths, 4 fireplaces, library, 3-car garage with gardener's apartment, a 2-story bank barn houses 14 box stalls, squash court, tack room and coctail lounge, that was used by guests to "toast the hunt", hay storage plus a second 2-year-old barn with 25 box stalls and hay storage, a tennis court and swimming pool round out this choice property, that's presently used as a breeding farm for standard-breds and offered by Weidel Real Estate for $595,000

COUNTRY ESTATE! PRINCETON TOWNSHIP

Entrance gates and tree-lined drives lead to this fine old estate with 6 acres of grandeur, frontage on two roads to guard your privacy and your investment. Quality construction with meticulous attention to detail shown throughout this charming 14 room English Tudor including hardware, paneling, leaded glass windows and a floor plan that's as convenient as it is gracious, 5 bedrooms each with its own bath, multi-fireplaces. Very charming brick carriage house with a delightful 3 bedroom suite and 4-car garage plus a separate 2-car detached garage, brick dog kennels and swimming pool, tastefully tucked out of sight. A fine old Princeton estate for $995,000 with the possibility of financing, if qualified. Shown by appointment only. Call Weidel at 737-1500.

Present Day Club Formed 82 Years Ago in Princeton Over Protests by Some It Might Be "Too Radical"

On January 29, 1898, 29 women gathered at the home of Miss Ada Louise Norris at 79 Alexander Street for the purpose of forming a club.

Miss Elizabeth Paxton described an organization formed for "literary and social purposes" where she had been a guest while on a visit to Pittsburgh. Mrs. William Libbey Jr. said she was interested in the idea but felt it was too "radical." Despite Mrs. Libbey's objection, the club was formed, and it was she who gave it the name that has endured through its 82-year history: The Present Day Club.

A history of The Present Day Club, from which this anecdote comes, has been published as a 60-page pamphlet which gives a lively account of Princeton society from the turn of the century as it chronicles the activities and interests of club members through two world wars and the Great Depression to the present.

The pamphlet incorporates the History of the Present Day Club from 1898 to 1948 written by Miss Eleanor Bowman and read at the 50th anniversary meeting. The meeting was concluded with the ceremony of burning the mortgage on the club house at 72 Stockton Street.

Photographs, Too. Jeanne Silvester, the current Present Day Club Historian, has continued the history from 1948 to 1980. Both parts are enlivened by photographs of the women who were prominent in club affairs and of the several places — most of which are no longer standing — where the Present Day Club met before purchasing its own home at 72 Stockton Street in 1930.

The Present Day Club first met in two unfurnished rooms lent by Princeton University in University Hall, where Commons Dining Hall is today. Dues were $5 a year, with a $2 initiation fee. The purpose, as stated in the Constitution, was "to create an organized center of thought and action among the women of Princeton and to stimulate an interest in science, literature, art and social and ethical culture."

As Miss Bowman writes, "The club cautiously appropriated forty dollars for house furnishings, and things began to hum." Classes were formed for instruction in Dutch, Italian, German, Parliamentary Law and Sketching. Mrs. Robert Anderson guided the ladies in Parliamentary Law, and club members had a debate: "Should We Annex the Hawaiian Islands?" with the vote "a timid tie."

The first public step was to petition the Mayor and Borough Council to prohibit the posting of bills and notices upon the trees and to restrict these notices to store windows and bill boards. The Dreyfus Trial and the first performance of "Cyrano de Bergerac" were among early topics and Prof. Stockton Axson, brother of the first Mrs. Woodrow Wilson, started a series of literary talks by speaking on "Ruskin and Carlyle."

"Errant Electricity." In 1904 under the chairmanship of Mrs. Junius S. Morgan, 12 women visited Ellis Island, and immigration, housing of working classes, tenement houses in New York City, child labor in the south, juvenile court and probation officers were all under serious study by club members.

MISS ADA LOUISE NORRIS at whose home, 79 Alexander Street, the meeting was held Jan. 22, 1898 to consider forming a club for women in Princeton. President 1899-1900.

To quote again from the early history, "In 1904 men were invited for the first time to a club meeting, and fortunate it was too, for during a paper being read by Miss Harriet Boyd, noticeable symptoms of fire came to the attention of Miss Sarah Bache Hodge. With great presence of mind, she informed one of the gentlemen guests, and he quietly notified the fire department. There was no confusion, and the errant electricity was attended to without disturbing the meeting."

By 1909 The Present Day Club had grown to 130 members. Better train service for Princeton, Women's Suffrage, "Training of Parents," the formation of a club for "colored women" in Princeton and securing a county Tubercular Hospital were among the pre-war concerns. By 1914 talks on the significance of the war and German militarism alternated with dances to raise money for the Red Cross and programs on the poetry of Byron, Shelley and Nietsche.

The history is dotted with legendary names from Princeton's illustrious past. Albert Einstein gave a benefit violin recital at the club in 1941, accompanied by Mme. Gaby Casedesus. Dr. and Mrs. Thomas Mann were feted at an evening reception in 1939.

Ambassadors and Prime Ministers. Art exhibitions featured Howard Russell Butler and Julian Garnsey, as well as the collection of Mary Cassatt etchings belonging to Prof. and Mrs. Alfred McVitty. Margaret Sanger, Max Eastman, Lord Bertrand Russell, Lowell Thomas, Mrs. Dwight Morrow and Mrs. Clarence Day all came to speak, as did ambassadors, prime ministers, presidents of foreign parliaments and English novelists.

By contrast, the more recent history, from 1948 to the present, seems caught up in matters of maintenance, staffing, rising dues and how to handle the ever-growing waiting list for membership. Certain traditions, such as the art exhibitions, prevailed, trips were initiated, and experts continued to address the members after lunch on a

'The Misanthrope' Has More Talk Than Action, But Theatre Intime Manages a Lively Production

"Misanthrope. n. A person who hates or distrusts mankind."

The specimens of mankind selected by Moliere from the high society of 17th century france for his comedy "The Misanthrope" are a hypocritical lot. Satirical laughter is the playwright's weapon for disposing of them. Theatre Intime, currently reviving the play in Murray Theatre, honors the spirit of Moliere by inciting the same kind of satirical laughter.

To one individual, however, these exuberantly overdressed, artificially mannered fops and intriguers are no laughing matter. Alceste, the central character of the play, carries misanthropy to extremes. Not only does he hate the lies and shams of the society around him (a sentiment we can easily share), but he seizes every chance to tell people what is wrong with them. Even Celimene, the coquettish beauty whom he loves, gets lectured for her faults and scolded for showing an interest in other men when she is supposed to be loving him.

This misanthrope, in short, is a thorough egoist. Everyone is out of step except him. One can assume that Moliere's satire is aimed at the misanthrope's self-righteousness as well as at the multiple shams and mummery of society.

Whatever serious intent the playwright may have had, "The Misanthrope" exhibits some highly entertaining characters. Alceste's comrade Philinte tries, mostly in vain, to urge some tolerance on his uncompromising friend. Pompous Oronte fancies himself as a poet as well as a lover. The two marquises, Clitandre and Acaste, are almost caricatures, the former of self-importance, the latter of self-adoration.

Celimene is so sure of her power of attraction that she plays a risky game of keeping her lovers on tightropes, simultaneously close and yet distant, a game which eventually collapses on her. Her cousin Eliante is the most honest of the women. It seems only fair that she should finally be paired with Philinte, the reasonable man.

Arsinoe wields the wittiest and most spiteful tongue. Whereas slandering and name-calling usually occur behind the victims' backs, Arsinoe and Celimene engage in the play's most fascinating face-to-face volleying. The two ladies tear each other's characters into shreds, all the time maintaining a semblance of perfect politeness.

Verse Translation Works Well. The translation used in this production, by Richard Wilbur, is in verse. It accords well with the artificial attitudes of most of the speakers, and occasional apt rhymes add a touch of fun to the dialogue. For the most part the director, graduate student Willard M. Dix, has trained his cast to speak the lines with the naturalness of prose.

With "The Misanthrope" Theatre Intime has mounted one of its handsomest presentations in years. The living room, designed and built by David Willoughby, is simple, elegant and uncluttered. A nice touch is the black and white "marble" floor. The costumes chosen by Martha Bennett with help from the McCarter Costume Shop are splendidly eye-filling.

In a generally good cast, my vote for the acting blue ribbon goes to Debra Prager for her magnificently bitchy Arsinoe. Her every look and inflection combine honey with venom. On a technical plane, she is audible a hundred percent of the time.

Eighty percent seems to be the ceiling for two otherwise excellent performers. Eleanor Moseley is charmingly enticing as Celimene. It is easy to see why Alceste can't give her up even though his reason tells him she is full of faults. And Kent Klineman's vigorous Alceste keeps pace with the changing moods of that unsatisfiable critic. Both Mosely and Klineman have good voices, but in quiet passages tend to let their words die before reaching an audience.

Jerry McGroarty as Philinte and Caroline Gosse as Eliante are pleasing in the contrast they offer with the prevailing posturing of everybody else. Zachary Roesemann, as Acaste, outdoes Narcissus in his admiration for himself — a delightful characterization of the ultimate dandy.

Alex Kroll's Oronte and Roberto Rossi's Clitandre got their share of laughs, but I don't think Hamlet would have been too pleased: "Do not saw the air too much with your hand" or "tear a passion to tatters," he advised his players. "Strutting and bellowing" were also on Hamlet's blacklist.

Too Busy. "The Misanthrope" has more talk than action. Perhaps with this in mind, Director Dix created as much movement as he could. After a while, however, I was tempted to count the number of times one actor crossed in front of another. The thump of Alceste's heavy boots on the resounding marble floor became a sort of mild obbligato. Some of the crosses had a reason, and such stage business is good until it calls attention to itself; then it distracts.

This is doubtless an unworthy minor criticism to make of direction which brought out the style, the humor and the spirit of Moliere's classic piece. If for its pictorial quality alone the play is worth seeing. Most viewers will find pleasure also in its wit and high fooling.

Three performances are scheduled for this week, Thursday through Saturday, at 8:30 p.m.

—Herbert McAneny

'SEAGULL'

In University Production. Chekhov's "The Seagull," described by Princeton University's Program in Theatre and Dance as "a comedy of love and art," will be on stage again this weekend at The Acting Studio, 185 Nassau. It will play this Thursday, Friday, Saturday and Sunday at 8. Reservations may be made at 452-3676, or tickets may be purchased at the door.

Carol V. Elliott, faculty member of the theatre program, is directing the student cast. Joan-Claude Van Itallie, another member of the theatre program faculty, has done the translation. Isabelle Ring and Lisa Cameron have turned the small Acting Studio into an impressionist garden.

Alan Mokler, of the program, has written this about "The Seagull":

"As in most of Chekhov's plays, the characters in 'The Seagull' might seem at first to have been drawn from soap opera: Semyon loves Masha who loves Konstantine who loves Nina who loves Trigorin who would really rather fish.

"What keeps them all from falling into melodrama is Chekhov's light touch, and his knowledge that while we are all, indeed, theatrical, we are also foolish, strange, maddening and occasionally touching. His characters search for meaning to their loves and, in ways that are both funny and heart-rending, look everywhere for it; in their writing and acting, in their lovers and husbands and babies, in their clothes and fame and hard work. Nowhere do they find it, except fleetingly, but their search is a mirror of the modern way of life."

JAMMING ...

With "Loose Joints." The improvisational group known as Loose Joints, formed last year by some Princeton University students, will present "Jamming at the Empire Club" at various campus locations this weekend.

"Jamming" takes a look at a variety of topical subjects, with a sharp focus on fun. The audience is invited to participate.

Loose Joints will be in the basement cafe of Murray Dodge Theatre this Saturday at 10:30 in the Princeton Inn College lounge on Alexander Street this Friday at 7:30 and in the Princeton Performing Arts Center (behind the Athenian Restaurant on Witherspoon) this Saturday at 8.

Loose Joints is under the direction of Steve Gomer, a teacher in the University's theatre and dance program, and a professional director in New York. Alan Questel, a professional actor employed by the program, is also directing.

sidered for the Shakespeare 70 production of "Measure for Measure" are invited to audition this Sunday, December 13, and next Tuesday, December 15. Auditions will be held at Artists Showcase Theatre, 121 Grand Street, Trenton, starting at 7:30.

"Measure for Measure" will be presented at the theatre the last two week-ends in February. Other productions are planned for presentation at the theatre, and also at the Open Air Theatre next spring and summer. Separate auditions in the spring will be held by the company's musical division.

John F. Erath, professor of English at Trenton State College, will direct "Measure for Measure," and Gerald E. Guarnieri, chairman of the Trenton Arts Commission, will produce and design the production.

Shakespeare 70 is a non-profit company now in its 12th season. It is funded in part by grants from the Mercer County Cultural and Heritage Commission in cooperation with the New Jersey State Council on the Arts.

Information about auditions may be obtained by calling 609-392-1704 in the evenings.

'VANITIES'

In Players' Production. Are you any different in college from the way you were in high school? Different, in your twenties from the way you were—back then?

The three girls in "Vanities" go through the agonizing contortions of growing up, changing or not changing and finding in some cases, that getting there is half the fun.

Jack Heifer's "Vanities" is the next production of Princeton Community Players, scheduled to open this Thursday with performances through Sunday, and again Friday through Sunday, December 18-20. An "opening week-end reception" will follow this Friday's show. There is an 8:30 curtain, except on Sundays when curtain time is 7:30.

"Vanities" will be given in the PCP Playhouse, 171 Broadmead. Reservations may be made by calling 924-5976 between 10 and 5.

June Cawley is directing Ilene Freedman, Phyllis Platt and Louise Arnold in the lead roles.

VANITIES! How to get from adolescence to adulthood and is it fun along the way? Ilene Freedman, Phyllis Platt and Louise Arnold seem to think it is. June Cawley is directing the Princeton Community Players' production, which will open this Thursday at the 171 Broadmeed Playhouse. (Paul G. Saunders photo)

CONCERT SCHEDULED

By PDS Music Groups. The Music Department of Princeton Day School will present the Christmas portion of G.F. Handel's "Messiah" on Tuesday at 8. The glee club and orchestra will be directed by Frank Jacobson, chairman of the PDS Music Department.

Soloists, all upper school students, will be Lauren Goodyear of Lawrenceville and Ruth Edelman of Princeton, sopranos; Jennifer Paine of Princeton, Tracy Eskridge of Trenton and Joyce Travers of West Trenton, altos; Jonathan Rabb of Princeton, tenor; Louis Goldberg of Trenton, Lindsay Suter and Charles Shehadi, both of Princeton, baritones.

In addition, there will be a group of seasonal selections by the PDS Madrigal Singers. The winter concert will take place in the upper gym of Princeton Day School, The Great Road, and is open to the public. Donations to defray costs of the performance will be accepted.

'TINTYPES'

Through January 3. Celebrating the America of 1880-1920 through the popular music of those decades, "Tintypes" will rollick along on the stage of the George Street Playhouse in New Brunswick, through January 3.

Extra performances have been added, including shows at 7 and 10:30 p.m. New Year's Eve. Regular performances are Tuesdays through Thursdays at 8, Fridays and Saturdays at 8:30 and Sundays at 3 and 7:30. Matinees are noon Wednesdays and 4 p.m. Saturdays. They are scheduled for alternating weeks, and details may be obtained from the box office — 201-246-7717.

'MESSIAH' FEATURED

By Choir and Symphony. The New Jersey Symphony will feature the Westminster Symphonic Choir in a performance of Handel's "Messiah" on Friday at 8:30 in the War Memorial Auditorium in Trenton. The concert will be conducted by Joseph Flummerfelt, director of choral activities at Westminster Choir College.

The Symphonic Choir has been singing with major symphony orchestras since 1939 when it first appeared with the New York Philharmonic. The choir has sung virtually all the well-known choral-orchestral repertoire and recorded many of the works

It has performed "Messiah" with both Bernstein and Sir Malcolm Sargent and the Philharmonic, William Smith and the Philadelphia Orchestra and twice with the National Symphony.

The concert in Trenton will be the first performance of the work under the choir's regular conductor, Joseph Flummerfelt. Tickets are $14.50 for orchestra and $13.50 for balcony and may be purchased at the door or by contacting Barbara Butler at 737-1139 before Friday. Student and senior citizen tickets for $5 are available 30 minutes before concert time on a seat available basis.

AREA RESIDENTS

On Boychoir Roster. Eight area residents will be accompanying the 29 member Concert Choir of the American Boychoir School on tour to Washington, D.C. on December 18-21.

During the Boychoir's stay in Washington, the boys will be singing at a candlelight Christmas Service at the White House as well as performing in "King David" by Honegger and "A Ceremony of Carols" by Benjamin Britten at the Smithsonian. This program will be broadcast live on National Public Radio.

Joseph Flummerfelt

Making the trip from Princeton are Robinson Wageman, son of Mr. and Mrs. James Wageman of 42 Linden Lane; Scott Garvey, son of Mr. and Mrs. Gerald Garvey of 81 Alexander Road; Benjamin Farrell, son of Mr. and Mrs. Larry Farrell of 129 Hodge Road; and Simon Hankinson, son of Mr. and Mrs. Richard Hankinson of 172 S. Harrison Street.

Also David Edwards, son of Mr. and Mrs. Wayne Edwards of Lawrenceville; Peter Eglitis, son of Mr. and Mrs. Edgars Eglitis of Belle Mead; Saul Ferris, son of Mr. and Mrs. John Ferris of Hopewell; and Andrew Westphal, son of Mrs. George Ljutich of New Brunswick.

VIOLINIST TO PLAY

With University Orchestra. The Princeton University Orchestra, under the direction of Michael Pratt, will appear in Alexander Hall in two performances, Friday and Saturday at 8:30 p.m. in a free concert.

Geoffrey Michaels, violinist, will be the guest artist. The program will include Beethoven's Concerto for Violin and Orchestra in D Major and Brahms Symphony No. 2 in D Major, Opus 73.

A native of Western Australia, Mr. Michaels has been a laureate of the Tchaikovsky Competition, the Queen Elizabeth of Belgium International Competition, the Montreal International Competition, and the Concours Jacques Thibaud in Paris. He recently appeared in New York's Tully Hall as soloist in Berg's "Chamber Concerto" and the U.S. premiere of Alfred Schnittke's "Concerto Grosso."

A recent, extensive tour of Australia involved concerto and recital appearances in all the major cities, as well as engagements as Artist-in-Residence at the universities in Perth, Melbourne and Sydney. An experienced teacher of violin, viola and chamber music, Mr. Michaels is presently on the teaching staff of Princeton University and Swarthmore College.

DATE ANNOUNCED

For Traditional Winter Concert. The Princeton High School Music Department will present its Annual Winter Concert in the Chapel of Princeton University on Tuesday evening, December 22, at 8.

This concert, which has become a school and community tradition over the past 35 years, features more than 300 students performing in a variety of vocal and instrumental groups. The program will consist of choral works from all periods, sung by the choirs under the direction of William Trego and Nancianne Parella. Portia Sonnenfeld will direct the orchestra and Anthony Biancosino will conduct the symphonic wind ensemble.

Coordinator for the concert is Florence Burk, Assistant Principal at the High School. The cover of the program has been chosen from designs submitted by PHS students in a school-wide competition.

The concert will conclude with traditional presentation of Bach's "Break Forth, O Beauteous Heavenly Light" and Handel's "Hallelujah Chorus," performed by all the choirs and alumni, who are invited to come from the audience to join in the singing of these two compositions.

Admission is free and all are welcome.

AUDITIONS PLANNED

For St. Matthew Passion. The Princeton Pro Musica, directed by Frances F. Slade, will hold auditions for singers on Monday through Wednesday evenings, December 14-16.

The chorus will begin rehearsals on Tuesday, January 5, for a March 14 performance of the "St Matthew Passion," by J.S. Bach. This performance will be held at the War Memorial Auditorium in Trenton; the Evangelist role will be sung by tenor Jon Humphrey.

For an audition appointment, call 883-1890.

CHOIR TO SING

Vespers at Chapel. The Princeton University Chapel Choir, under the direction of Prof. Walter Nollner, Director of Music in the Princeton University Chapel, will present the musical portion of the Christmas Vespers on Sunday at 2:30 in the University Chapel. An annual service for many years, the Vespers is the major musical event for the Choir in the fall semester, and features music appropriate to the season.

The major work to be performed this year will be the setting of the Ordinary of the Mass by the early french composer Josquin des Pres entitled "Missa Ave Maris Stella."

Soloists from the Choir will sing the two-voice sections, a small group will sing the "Pleni sunt coeli," and an instrumental combination of cornetto and three bassoons will give varying timbres at different points throughout.

Isobel Woods, Assistant Conductor of the Choir, will lead the group in a performance of the chorus "Il s'en va loin de la terre" from the Berlioz oratorio "L'enfance du Christ." The work will be accompanied by organ, played by Christopher Brunt, University Organist.

The service is open to the public and all are welcome.

LET'S TALK ABOUT

CHRISTMAS TREES: It Pays to Keep Them Fresh!

with Sam De Turo

Woodwinds Associates

If you're using a fresh cut Christmas tree in your holiday decorating this year, we'd like to share some hints on keeping it as fresh as possible.

First, choose your tree for freshness: choose it early (although trees are all cut at pretty much the same time, the chances are you'll keep it fresher than the tree-lot will!). Look for signs of sap on the stump, no patches of brown needles, and bright green color and strong fragrance.

Once you get it home, cut an inch or two off the stump at a slant, and then peel another inch or so of bark from the stump to allow a greater surface area for absorbing water. Place the tree upright in a bucket of water, and keep in a cool place until you're ready to put it up. Sprinkle the needles occasionally with water during this period. You might also try adding a cup or two of sugar to the water in the bucket!

Before bringing the tree into the house and this is important for both cut and balled trees which you plan to plant later on: spray the tree thoroughly with a WinterProofing spray (such as the WiltPruf or Vapor-Guard you should be planning to spray on your broadleafed evergreens!). Mix the WinterProof material at a ratio of 40 parts water to one part material. This will keep your tree from losing water through the needles, but will not alter the appearance of the tree at all. It is vital that you repeat this process when your live, balled tree is ready to go outdoors, too!

Finally, be sure you keep plenty of water in your tree stand at all times: the less the tree is allowed to dry out, the fewer needles you'll be cleaning up later!

CHORAL CONCERT SET

At Trenton State College. The Trenton State College Concert Choir under the direction of Dr. Ruthann Harrison will present the annual Winter Concert Sunday at 3 in the large auditorium of Kendall Hall. The public is invited to attend the free program.

This year's concert is dedicated to Hope Jackman, a member of the college administration since 1947 who is retiring from Trenton State College on December 31. In her distinguished years of service at the Hillwood Lakes Campus, Ms. Jackman served as assistant dean of students and coordinator of housing and food services before taking her present position as director of college events in the office of college relations.

The a capella program will include the "Quatre Motets" by Maurice Duruflé, and "Sixty-Seventh Psalm" by Charles Ives, as well as the "Ceremony of Carols" by Benjamin Britten.

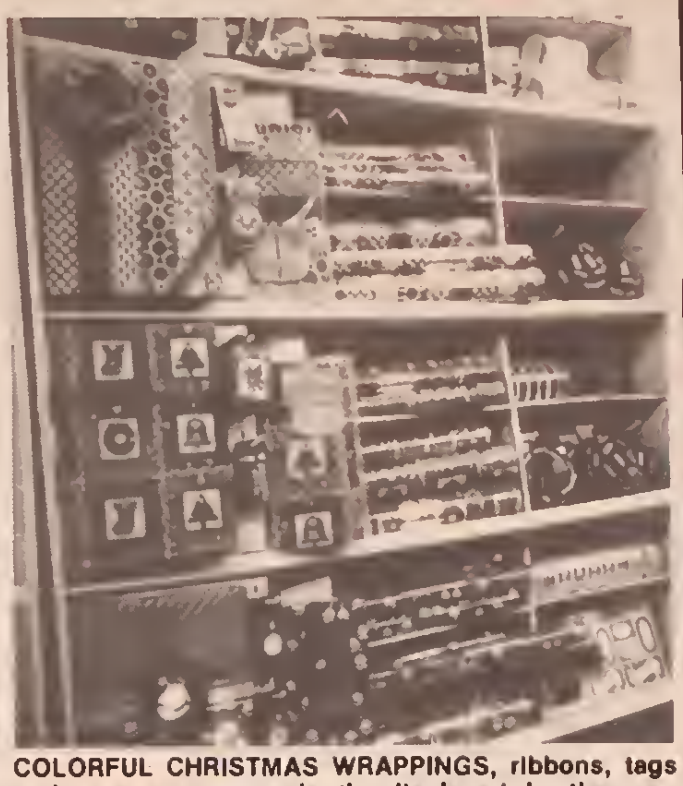
Why Travel to the City for Christmas Shopping? The Princeton Area Can Meet Your Every Need

Some seasonal traditions are expendable, such as long treks into our neighboring cities for annual holiday shopping sprees. The greater Princeton area has everything we need for each member of the family, shopping is far more tranquil and pleasant, and there is no tax on many items in New Jersey. So save your energy for window shopping, viewing all of the exciting city decorations and festive holiday activities there and shop right at home!

Why become exhausted in New York shops when you can find just what you need for elegant party-going at Bellow's. You will appreciate the quiet, unhurried atmosphere and expert advice from the salespeople at the shop, which features a collection of sensational evening clothes as well as the latest attire to be worn from morning through evening.

Exquisite printed silk chiffons shocked with threads of gold and silver or ribbon, some with tunics or knickers, will grace any evening party this season. Other showstoppers might include: a lace tiered sheath in toast; an off-the-shoulder dress in burgundy velvet trimmed with ostrich feathers; a flapper dress in velvet with rhinestone clips at the shoulder; a black or copper sequined sheath with one long sleeve; and a gold lame sheath with ruffles.



COLORFUL CHRISTMAS WRAPPINGS, ribbons, tags and tape are conveniently displayed in the new Norman's card and gift shop, which features a large selection of Hallmark products, soft sculptures, stained glass decorations, puzzles and plush animals.

IT'S NEW To Us

More classic, yet updated, are colorful feminine taffeta skirts and dresses combined with velvet. An unusually stunning combination is a long blue and purple satin bodice and skirt with a wide sash of brown.

You don't have to choose these evening clothes to dress up for holiday nights. Bellow's also has many co-ordinates to freshen up the wardrobe. Quilted velvet jackets; a black velvet full skirt with a silver lace petticoat; several styles of warm and dressy lurex camisole sweaters; and the latest basic black full skirts are among the treasures.

Denim at Christmastime? That's right, and Bellow's has a super selection of denim and gold combinations such as a pinwheel dirndle dotted with gold; a Chinese work skirt with gold buttons; a vest; and a denim lurex blouse with a gold crocheted collar.

A bronze sequined tee-shirt or high-collared copy of an antique lace blouse will nicely top velvet jeans or many of the other pants sold at the shop. Suede tunics, pants, tee-shirts, and jackets in chamois and olive have taken on a dressier aura. One spectacular jacket of very soft striped lizard, in the colors of luggage or brown, sells for $180.

Smaller gift items from Bellow's might be: turquoise and silver concho belts; glittering evening bags of gold, pewter and silver; all colors of leg warmers and textured bose (good for stocking stuffers); and mohair stoles in plaids, white, tan and red.

For those lucky ones heading south this winter, the shop is ready with the latest cruisewear; for example: tailored linen pants and knickers or culottes in natural, pink or celadon green with matching cotton sweaters and jackets or chic red harem pants with tops of royal blue, jade, and white.

Little boys and girls will look as elegant as their mothers after choosing their holiday suits and dresses at Bellow's children's boutique. Delicious velvets of jade, blue, black, turquoise and periwinkle trimmed in lace; rose Victorian taffetas with matching French purses; and red or green Florence Eiseman dresses with removeable pinafores of crisp white pique with matching suits for little boys are among the fine quality children's clothing. Toy animals of the Beatrix Potter characters and the Paddington Bear station have always been favorites for the young customers of Bellows.

Tailored good taste is the key this season at Picadilly on Nassau Street. Wonderful authentic plaid knits from Scotland, with a wide choice of cable knit and Shetland sweaters to match, will be a fine gift for any age woman. The long and short skirts are truly unusual tartans, often so difficult to find.

Brightly colored Tyrolean wool jackets will ideally top these pretty skirts and others of plush velveteen in raspberry, lilac, black and green. Fashionable feminine blouses and tailored button-down shirts are Picadilly's specialty. If you are looking for a blouse to match anything, this is the place!

Sporty seasonless dressing, available at this small, cheerful shop, will be appreciated all year long. Handsome ladies' cords of yellow lavender, pink, all blues, camel, green, grey, wine and red, and matching turtle-necks, can be worn now on the paddle court, running about town, or up north in the summer time.

Many inexpensive gifts for all ages can be found at the shop, such as: Bermuda bags with many different-colored covers; sized d-ring belts with numerous prints of tennis racquets, sail boats, stripes, horses, whales, and golf clubs at $8; striped wallets, watch bands, and key rings.

On the elegant side, machine-washable ultrasuede skirts and jackets in delicious pastels would make special gifts, as would one of the stunning hand-woven wool shawls, with or without gold thread, beginning at $37. For those travelling south in the near future, the $23 machine-washable short-sleeved shirts are now in stock. Who would not appreciate a Lanz nightie or pyjamas and robe to match? Picadilly has all of the new prints from which to choose.

La Shack, 173 Nassau Street, continues to make marvelous silk co-ordinated pants, blouses, tunics, long and short skirts, camisoles and sashes in luscious holiday colors which can be worn all year long. Unusually festive caftans made of silks, with ribboned borders, have always been a favorite item.

Owner Barbara Bush emphasizes that the key to this year's dressing is "how to make do with an older dress by giving it a new look." Many of La Shack's stunning accessories achieve this goal. Extravagant silk cord belts, interwoven with beads, gold or silver cords, and other glitter are priced most reasonably. Large silk cummerbunds may be worn at the waist and fastened with the woven silk ties or perhaps as a stole.

Stoles and shawls of all fabrics and sizes will add a touch of elegance to any basic dress or pants combination. Neck scarves could be twisted around to use as a choker and threaded with some old beads.

La Shack's costume jewelry is a feast to the eyes, including matinee length pearls and colorful beads and chunky chokers of shell, coins, and gold which range from $15 to $120.

For warmth and fashion, mesh and metallic sweaters combined with wool in various colors will top many of the shop's tailored pants. Cords of all colors and sweaters to match are timeless gifts. Velvet patchwork separates (jackets, culottes, blazers, and knickers) will be a smash at holiday parties. Heavy sweatering in mohairs, angoras and wools will combine comfort with a dressy look.

Small gift ideas at La Shack include a box of three belts with a good-looking clasp for $22, many blouses of polyester, silk and Victorian lace, beaded handbags and canvas totes.

Classic gifts, large and small from F. W. Donnelley and Sons in the Lake Lawrence shopping plaza, are just what your man needs. If he happens to be a very big man, a complete line of clothing for the largest size made is available, too.

Solid, and bright tartan trousers by Corbin and Major will look handsome when combined with a new sports jacket in Shetland wool, flannel camelhair, or ultrasuede. Hart, Schaffner and Marx and Kingsridge are among the shop's fine labels which begin at $110.

The complete line of Pendleton wool shirts at $44, sweaters to $100 and their useful Indian blankets (which double as wall-hangings) from $52.50 to $100 are superb gifts this season.

Dress shirts tastefully designed by Sero, Bristol, Enro and Damon in pure cotton or blends and Countess Mara ties will brighten up the wardrobe of the most reluctant male shopper.

Timeless v-necks, regimental stripes, colorful shetlands, and cardigans by Izod range from $28 to $100 at F.W. Donnelley. The outerwear department of the spacious attractive store offers a wonderful choice of

For the One Who Has Everything

We are often stumped by the one person who is the all-time consumer and doesn't seem to need anything. Here are a few thoughts for such a type:

For the forgetful gourmet cook, we suggest a timer on a silk cord for $17.50. A lantern, designed by a Princeton engineer, fits into a purse or a shirt pocket and will light up a nine by twelve room for $15.50.

The Electric Match, a butane lighter jet for $16 will safely light a barbecue or a fireplace at a distance. All from Warnock's.

Parisienne parchment notepaper in the shape of leaves in pink, purple, green and white, could be used for notes, or gift tags. Full House.

Genuine origami cicada bookplate and Japanese designs with an authentic Omi-Musubi tie knot used by aristocrats to tie whipcords are found at Full House

Musical houses have little drawers for special jewels or collectibles. The shadow box figures do a little dance to the music. From the Cummins Shop.

A 24-carat gold plated toothbrush from Home Decor would represent the ultimate in gift giving.

holofil, down, wool and fleece-lined ultrasuede coats in all of the current lengths.

The large man need look no further as the shop has stocked everything he will need for the winter months including suits and jackets up to size 52; shirts from a 37 sleeve and size 20 neck, in cotton, blends, chamois and Lacostes; cords, and pyjamas.

Warmth at low prices is the word at the Leather Warehouse in the Market Place. Shearling coats and jackets in all lengths are very good buys and make wonderful surprises for Christmas. Prices for these handsome classic coats and jackets for men and women begin at $179.

Three-quarter length leather coats, and long ones of the same luxurious skins, are great favorites of leather collectors. The leather look has once again become very important in fashion and the Leather Warehouse is selling jeans by the hundreds. Coordinating vests in pastels and darker colors begin at $19.99, while the shearling variety is sold for $69.99. One of the more handsome discounted jackets is olive with gold piping.

To complete the Western look, a grand selection of cowboy hats can be found here. Other interesting gift ideas include: men and women's attache cases from $21.99; wallets; key rings, sheepskin mittens from $14; and black, brown or mahogany motorcycle jackets.

Truly a feast to eyes, and well worth the short drive out of Princeton, is a visit to Ambleside in Belle Mead. Located on State Highway 206 and Oxford Place, the nursery and gift shop embodies the joys of Christmas all around the world. Owners Mary and Townsend Scudder have collected a treasure of Christmas crafts for ornamentation and entertaining. A most unusual gift can surely be found there while one is shopping for the perfect Christmas tree.

THE ANIMALS ARE COMING one by one to celebrate Ambleside's Christmas from around the world this year. A treasury of folk-art and crafts from many different countries is now on view at the nursery on 206 in Belle Mead. Creche scenes, embroidered ornaments, and hand-carved figures of guinea hens, zebras, rhinos and others are among the fine selection of items for special gifts, entertaining or decor.

To aid the shopper, more than twelve different trees have been festooned with glorious ornaments and boughs from different countries such as blue and white decorations from Sri Lanka; straw and ceramic figures from Mexico; folk art from Peru; hand-embroidered things from the Philpines and Columbia; and matrushka dolls from Russia.

In keeping with the international theme and the thought that Christmas is a time to reflect upon the unity among nations rather than their differences, Ambleside this year is featuring an exhibition of animals from around the world. They are displayed beneath the shop's varied selection of creche or nativity scenes.

"Naciementos" from Peru, Mexico, Guatemala, and Uruguay represent the traditions in Latin countries, while the German, Swedish, and famous French "Santons de Provence" reflect the tastes, new and old, of those countries.

Solid pewter ornaments and creche figurines from Bavaria, made from antique molds; hand-carved guinea hens, zebras, ostriches, hippos, and many other animals from Nigeria and other African nations, all make generous gifts and collectible family heirlooms.

Among the most distinctive sights at Ambleside is a Noah's Ark hand-crafted, numbered and signed for a limited edition by English artist David Plagerson. All of the 36 pairs of hand-painted, carved male and female animals are unique and colorful. Some are seen standing in the ark, while others are placed on rocks or near water. A ceramic mural scene of a pig farm with quilts hanging in the background, and a woven wall-hanging by Kaminski would make special gifts.

Other folk art includes: retablos and Santiagos from Peru; colorful Mexican candelabra, tin angels and bells; embroidered street scenes in bright colors from Columbia; a hand-embroidered horse and carriage from the Philippines; huts for the nativity scene by the children of Kenya; and musical cottages from England.

Gnomes from Sweden dressed in hand-knit red sweaters, climbing rope ladders; hand-crocheted snowflakes in rings to hang in the window; and ceramic lit houses from Central America will add special touches to your Christmas this year.

Wreaths, planted and freshly cut trees, even the reindeer Blitzen of fresh greens surround Ambleside, where the crowds will soon be flocking. Wreaths of all types with many creative decorations for the house or front door can be ordered to one's taste. Trees of Douglas Balsam and Fraser fir, Blue Spruce, and Scotch pine range in size from three to 18 feet and begin at $6.95.

Continuing with an international theme, two shoe stores in Princeton import stunning hand-made shoes to tempt their customers.

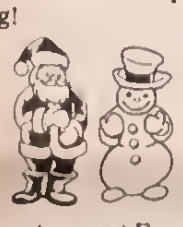
Aleka of Nassau Street has a marvelous selection of casual and very dressy shoes and boots from Greece. The super-fashionable metallics are seen everywhere in the shop.

Silver, gold, bronze and copper slings, sandals, and short boots will liven up even the drabest costume. One of the newest looks, a gaucho short-cuffed boot with no heel would be a terrific gift for the fashion-conscious. Celadon green or brown and gold woven flats can now be worn any time of the day.

Aleka features all suede and snakeskin street and casual shoes. White and red cowboy boots with colorful cut-out designs taken from an ancient Greek fresco are festive and very chic. The shop's sale continues with great bargains of $55 shoes for only $25.

Ricchard's of Nassau Street stocks the most elegant of men's footwear by Ferragamo and Bally of Switzerland. The classic slip-ons, street shoes, and the newest looking short boots for men by Ferragamo range from $110 to $185. The stunning handmade shoes of Bally begin at $120.

American made men's shoes by E.T. Wright, ideal for everyday business wear and more rugged occasions are fine products. Completely waterproof sheepskin-lined boots, which range from $80 to $125 are said to give enough protection for unexpected wading!



The most current European fashion in shoes and boots for ladies may also be found at Ricchard's. The boutique line by Ferragamo, slings, walking shoes and pumps, begins at $100 in handsome useful colors, such as warm brown burgundys, black patent, navy, and coffee suede. Flat metallic sandals by Martini in copper, gold, silver and pewter can be worn now for the holidays and in the warm weather as well.

Beene Bag shoes, moderately priced from $30 to $60, are an all-time favorite among well dressed women. A wide selection of boots in all of the newest lengths, some cuffed, and waterproof, range from $65 to $175. Lined boots for women by Morinnd of England begin at $58.

A good gift idea from Ricchard's might be one of the versatile coach bags or back-saving Swedish clogs in many winter colors.

Stop by the Competitive Sport, 179 Nassau Street, to shop for the active sports-people in your life. Great-looking warm-ups by Loomtogs, Player, Perry and Adidas for men and women with co-ordinating tennis clothing will assure best dressing, whether one is running down the road or playing on the courts.

The latest in women's tennis wear by Le Coq Sportif and Tail, matching shirts, skirts, shorts, pants and tops, and cozy warm-up suits in brick, navy, red, blue, buff and pink, begin at $49.95.

For men, handsome tennis gear by Boast, Le Coq Sportif, Perry and Adidas is well stocked at the small shop. Racquets by Head and Prince and athletic shoes by Swiss, Asaki, Puma, Perry, Adidas, and Nike can also be found there.

Small and amusing athletic gifts, some of which will make great stocking stuffers, include: the "Happy Hacker" tennis towel; joggers' and tennis survival kits; tennis magnets for the fridge; and the "Hacker's Yak Pack" notes.

One of the greatest surprises Santa could ever leave by the tree is a shining new bicycle or sled for big or little boys and girls. Jay's Cycles has a vast selection of bikes, mopeds, equipment for both, and servicing.

Snows will soon fall, we hope, and youngsters will take to the hills on Jay's classic Radio Flyer sleds or the sturdy rocket sleds, sliders and flexi-boggans. Even the youngest in the family will enjoy these snowy days with a detachable sled chair brace which can be fastened onto any wooden sled, for $6.95.

Bicycles from 12-inch wheels to the expert touring bikes for the older set are all on view at the shop on Nassau Street. Popular brand names for ten-speeds and touring bikes such as Raleigh, Fuji, Univega, Ross and Peugeot, Lotus and Windsor begin at $150.

Children from six to thirteen would enjoy one of Jay's super motor cross bikes from $138. One such flashy dirt bike sports bright yellow wheels this year!

Great savings are to be found at Jay's, including a $499 Motobecane moped and many of the ten-speed bicycles. Eclipse back packs; baskets such as the folding ones which are convenient for shoppers who prefer riding to driving; a selection of child seat carriers including the removable type; and a variety of the latest security devices make good Christmas gifts for such athletes.

For those who would like to get in shape yet stay home while doing so, Jay's has exercycles by Ross and Raleigh which will surely do the job.

"Business has really picked up since we moved to Witherspoon Street," smiles the owner of Footworks, John Woodside. The small, brightly painted new shop is always crowded with students, athletes, runners, and children shopping for the best shoes and running gear on the market.

Etonic, Adidas, New Balance, Saucony, and Nike footwear is in great demand in Princeton, as the enthusiasm for running continues to increase. All the gear necessary for safe and comfortable exercise of this sort is available at Footworks such as: athletic bags, some with a pouch for wet clothing; reflective vests, mitts, sashes, and headbands; and running shorts and t-shirts from all of the major companies.

The ideal present for a runner would be a Casio stop watch with a calculator at $49.99 or a simpler one for $19.99. Rain suits and warm-ups are in stock in bandsome colors for men, women and children. A most special gift would be a Gore-tex waterproof suit in white with navy piping which allows the body to breathe yet protects it from the elements of winter, from $165 and up.

Feet are getting bigger and bigger, says the manager; one customer recently came in asking for a size 14! Shoe sizes begin with children's from size 1 and go way up.

One of the biggest bargains in the area are the beautiful hand-made ornaments now on view at Clayphernalia. Nina Gelardi and her husband, John Shedd, have again designed a series of collectible trees, angels, bunnies, bells, butterflies, cats, dogs, and pigs all done in their special glazes. These distinctive whimsical ornaments are sold for only $2 each.

Another most reasonable holiday special at Clayphernalia is a gift set of a colander and cheese shaker, in their dragonfly pattern at $50. The colander will double as a fruit bowl and the shaker will hold holiday greens or flowers.

Delightful unique gifts, made by the talented ceramic artists, are presently on exhibit in their gallery near the canal in Rocky Hill. Lead-free, dishwasher and oven safe gifts don't have to look utilitarian. Beautifully designed two-quart covered casseroles, large bowls, platters, vases, teapots and placesettings are among the many pieces to buy for entertaining or gifts which are different. The husband-wife team is working in burgundy, blue and earth-toned glazes this season with an occasional splash of brilliant coral. Their work delights the craft-conscious.

WORKS OF ART by husband and wife taam, ceramists John Shadd and Nina Gilardi, are artistic and usaful gifts. Covarad casserolas, platters, larga bowls, and tablewara, all ovon-safa and dishwashar proof, ara among tha many hand-craftad and brightly-glazed places from which to choose at Claypharnalla in Rocky Hill.

Birds will come flocking to your garden if you choose one of 206 Hardware's many bird-feeders and seed for a Christmas or Hanukkah gift. A trip to the store in the Montgomery Mall will prove promising for those looking for a wide variety of lighting ornaments and stands for the Christmas tree.

Entertaining large groups can be a problem when it comes to serving coffee. The hardware store offers a 50-cup institutional coffee maker at $76.75. Many other appliances by G.E. are available, as well as a complete line of baking and cookie molds, so useful for making economical home-made gifts.

Save fuel costs and store up on 206 Hardware's complete line of weatherstripping by Stanley and 3M.

Next door, R.S. Stone has many delightful gift ideas to buy or make for someone special. A three-foot stuffed Scrooge, angel, elf or Santa will make cheery soft sculptures. Kits cost $18.95. Other needlework, felts, fabric, threads, and yarns for handmade gifts are plentiful at the shop. Baby toys, jeans, sweat suits and kitchen equipment are among the many varied items found here. Chopping blocks, appliances, cookie cutters, pastry molds, a lucite fruit ripener and win racks all would make useful presents.

It is possible to shop for the whole family at the Montgomery Pharmacy this month, and taking advantage of its continuing sale will help the budget. Before it's too late, hurry to find just the right boxed Christmas cards by Hallmark at 20 percent off. Timex watches, the ageless Christmas gift, are also on sale.

Hallmark products can be found everywhere in the versatile gift - pharmacy, including muppet ornaments (Kermit and Miss Piggy) and others ranging from $4.50 to $12; the charming rocking horse series; and an amusing space Santa Claus. In fact, there are many lively gifts for muppet fans such as Hallmark's little gallery, a collection of ceramic, pewter, and bisque porcelain muppet figures, one of which has Kermit and Miss Piggy in a boat and says "A loaf of bread, a jug of wine and Moi."

Joan Walsh Anglund figurines are lovely gifts for little girls and mothers, as are the beautiful Schmid music boxes and Hummel statues.

More than 200 puzzles are now in stock at the pharmacy, in a wide range of difficulty, for ages seven and up. For the younger set or anyone who loves cuddly things, a huge selection of plush toys of fine quality is on view. Pandas, pigs, bears, elephants, kangaroos, rams, even a Christmas parrot, by famous makers will be a delight under the Christmas tree.

For men, one of the many wallets in leather, a Casio calculator, or a Panasonic clock radio would be a good choice. The latest paper party patterns by Hallmark will save a hostess a lot of time and dishwashing. Complete sets are still in stock, as are the hollyberry and bayberry Christmas candles by Carolina.

Fragrances, dusting powders, bubble bath, after-bath lotion, and make-up cases and totes make nice gifts for women. Little girls relish their own make-up by Tinker Bell sold at the shop. Montgomery Pharmacy has a nice selection of small toys to aid the shopper who doesn't want to make too many stops.

Santa Claus sometimes leaves juicy apples in our Christmas stockings, but this year a much larger, more delightful, apple will be the most coveted gift for the whole family. Computer Encounter in the Grand Union shopping center stocks micro-computers by Atari, Hewlitt Packard, and Apple, which has put together a most exciting package for Christmas.

Apple Computer has gathered several of its best components and created a family system — a tremendously successful resource for working, learning, and playing. The system, which includes the Apple II computer, a disk driver, hand controllers, and a modulator in hardware, is a huge savings of more than $500. Software accompanying this versatile system is plentiful including: a personal filing system, a personal finance manager, a typing tutor, several games, plus training and resource matcrials.

Why sigh as your desk fills up with unanswered letters, files to sort out, and records to keep, when a micro-computer such as this one can expedite these tasks so easily. Filing time saved, plus accounting and money management will probably pay for the computer in a relatlvely short time, according to the knoweldge-able staff at Computer Encounter.

There's a friendly, non-threatening atmosphere about the shop, where free demonstrations are constantly being given.

Easy to set up, the Apple family system which comes packaged in one big box would be the ultimate gift this Christmas for all ages. As a learning device — not to mention the amusing and educational games included — this micro-computer is without comparison, say the experts.

Computer Encounter, which has a huge inventory of software and literature, also sells the Atari 400 and 800 systems with accompanying hardware. For example, the word processing system will aid those who do a lot of typing, from small businesspersons to professional writers and college students. A good functional system by Atari can be put together for much less money than the Apple. For business and more scientific needs, the Hewlitt Packard 85 and 125 are good sellers.

Computer Encouoter stocks hundreds of software packages, ranging in price from $6.95 to $49.95, including disks for languages, training, entertainment, adventures and fantasy. The shop is an authorized service center for all of these computer systems.

No need to go beyond Nassau Street to find the best quality toys and games for holiday gifts this year. the Nassau Hobby and Craft Shop has a fine selection of the latest arrivals, as well as timeless games to give, such as Monopoly.

Lego continues to be an all-time favorite for children from three to 13. Even an adult can get quite involved in building such elaborate structures as the Lego castle, which sells for $41.99, or an educational space station and explorer set for $55. Gifts of Lego, which also feature a power pack to make these creations move, are priced from $1.89 up. Idea books with three levels of expertise are helpful inexpensive presents.

Dungeons and Dragons devotees will be delighted with the new electronic game. Numerous strategic and fantasy games, plus a wide selection of magazines on the subject, will lead students further into the world of D and D.

One of the greatest features of the Nassau Hobby and Craft Shop is the choice of creative craft ideas for children to implement themselves, from the simplest snap-together car model for a six-year old, to the intricate scaled designs of an expert train set. The store stocks all gauges for train buffs, such as the Ho-scale by Tyco; the N-G gauge, and the O-27 LGM Germon trains.

Toddlers through six-year-olds will enjoy the new Lauri crepe foam rubber puzzles from $3.75 or the Duplo Fobuland sets.

Car collectors will delight in the Burago and Rio cars and old-fashioned models. Among the more recent arrivals at the shop are the Coppscla motorized land and water models which snap together and work. Starting at $15.98, the sets come with as many as five models in each box.

Youngsters studying science will appreciate the authentic prehistoric animal models of pine by Insecterior, such as the butterfly, ant, stag-beetle styracosaurus, plesiosaurus, and mammoths. For the older group a large choice of chemistry sets and the Fischer Technik building games will be a challenge from Nassau Hobby and Craft Shop.

Don't go afield when shopping for the finest, high-quality leather goods made. Luttman's Luggage, newly located on Witherspoon Street, not only deals with the best houses of leather and luggage available, but has many interesting items made for the shop exclusively.

An assortment of hand-hewn and ground knives would please the most discriminating hunter or sportsperson. Many of these handmade treasures are collector's pieces.

Calendars such as "A Week-At-A-Glance" in all sizes, letter folders, and legal pads are handsomely covered by leather covers especially hand made for Luttman's Ranging in price from $28 to $60, they will look nice on a desk or in a brief case.

Speaking of desks, luxurious desk sets of unusual woods, such as rosewood, black walnut, and zebra wood, are available by the piece or the set for $450, and would make an elegant gift for the man in your life.

GIFTS FOR LESS THAN $10

Plants, which dress up our homes during the holidays, are now on a half-price sale until the end of December at Petersen's nursery. Hanging baskets of flowers such as begonias, cyclamen in white, red, and pink; Jerusalem cherry plants; and colorful pepper plants will warm the spirit and decorate the house. Bunches of fresh-cut flowers, evergreens, pines and wheat will combine to make lovely home-made decorations this season.

Perna's deep purple violets planted in a snail-shaped terra cotta pot, hydrangeas, and the now-blooming Kalanchoe cacti in white and red, are also on sale at the shop.

A Georgian oil lamp, a super hot propane torch, a 19-inch tool box with a tray, a drill guide, a high-speed twist drill set, and a circular saw blade, a handyman hack saw and a surform plane are among the many holiday bargains to be found at Urken's.

The Pottery Barn continues to cater to those who need to watch their budget and now have a popcorn popper for the fireplace, a lovely Christmas glass platter with a tree for serving cakes and cookies, a hurricane with a ceramic base, and their own set of red and white tins for homemade cookies, make nice gifts.

Carkhuff's nursery is featuring decorated wreaths at a low price. A special under-$10 gift might be a six-foot red and green stocking to knit from Clayton's Yarn Shop.

Ellsworth's wine and liquor sale includes a good $9.99 bottle of champagne and many good buys in fine wines. Wrapped cheeses are very thoughtful and convenient Christmas gifts. Ellsworth's has a large selection.

Garment bags from $20 to $450 and luggage from all of the major houses are attractively displayed in the spacious new shop. For example, a good-looking under-the-seat bag by Fulton guarantees no wrinkles for one suit and trousers, still leaving space enough for a three-day trip. A matching and expanding helmet duffle would be an economical space-saver for the busy traveller.

"We have the largest selection of leather coach bags in New Jersey," beams owner Bruce Crondall. Brand names include Morris Moskowitz, Konet, Dooney Bourke, and original Ghurka bags. Smaller gift ideas might be: leather checkbook covers; a 1982 leather address book and calendar; a complete manicure set for men; wallets; passport cases; or a camera bag.

Wrapping a pile of gifts at the last minute can be a great burden. How many of us are up late, after a party on Christmas eve, just finishing that one more gift? It's not easy to be creative at that zero hour.

One of Princeton's newest stores, Norman's, formerly Zinder's, has the most exciting wrapping ideas around. Festive packages are exhibited as wrapped gifts in the front of the store, including ribbons, tags, tape and paper in all of our traditionally favorite themes, with a few more contemporary looks added this year.

The partially converted store, which will undergo major remodelling early next year, has brought still more attractive merchandise to Princeton. A complete line of Hallmark products, including paper party goods, cards and puzzles, will continue to be featured. Recycled cards and paper products are important to many of our citizens and can be found bearing unusual and artistic greetings this season.

Inexpensive, yet thoughtful, gifts could include one of the enormous selection of mugs now on view at the shop. "Preppie" and anti-preppie mugs, love themes, Snoopy cartoons, and just silly messages are part of this huge inventory.

Norman's, as seen in its other popular stores nearby Princeton, presents a wide variety of soft sculptures and sun catchers for windows. The sculptures are ideal for a student's or a young person's room, and the stained glass pieces are bound to please those of any age.

There are still many puzzles from Norman's former half-price sale, which make terrific gifts. Plush animals by Applause and Dakin, would please young recipients. Cushy bears, an otter, reindeer, even a pegasus with wings, are good choices.

"Preppiedom" and "anti-Preppiedom" are in full swing at Norman's with aprons, stationery, books, guides, posters — anything imaginable — available. Other small gift ideas include: a Snoopy desk set; cheerful mobiles; cookie cutters; lap desks for comfy studying and writing; and lovely silk flower arrangements in glass jars.

ART
In Princeton

TRAVEL ABSTRACT: Landscapes, and the abstractions of shapes and colors seen on travels to Bermuda, the Mediterranean and the European heartland constitute the bulk of color photographs by Martha Vaughn, which will go on view this Friday at The Nassau Gallery, 20 Nassau. Ms. Vaughn has studied with Robert Danby of Princeton, the International Center of Photography, Maine Photographic Workshop and with a National Geographic Magazine photographer. She does her own color processing.

AVANT-GARDE

At Squibb. New kinds of figurative avant-garde painting, and sculpture in a similar vein, are now on view in Squibb Gallery, Lawrenceville Road. The exhibit will continue through January 10.

"Aspects of Post-Modernism: Decorative and Narrative Art," features 27 contemporary American and European works.

"Many of these paintings represent a subjective and individualistic spirit far removed from the impersonal Minimalist and Color Field abstractions that ruled international art from the 1960s well into the 1970s," observes Sam Hunter, Princeton University art historian and critic, who selected the works in the exhibit.

"The new tendencies in art are far less tidy and controlled, and their character acknowledges both the spiritual malaise of an uncertain time, and the artist's memories, sensations, desires and visions."

A special bus for the artists and dealers involved in the show came to Squibb on Sunday from Soho, in New York City.

Included in the exhibit are works by Rodney Ripps, Kim McConnel and Joe Zucker. Julian Schnabel is showing one of his large, flamboyant theatrical canvases. There is a Jonathan Borofsky "object ensemble" with shaggy figures, the limp, vacant, featureless human caricatures of Jedd Garet, and David Salle's fractured, dream-like anatomies.

Located in the headquarters of E.R. Squibb & Sons, Inc., the Squibb Gallery is open from 9 to 5, Mondays through fridays; until 9 p.m. Thursdays, and from 1-5 Saturdays and Sundays.

STERN IN CHINA

Film at Art Museum. The film, "From Mao to Mozart: Isaac Stern in China" will be presented on Sunday, December 13, at 6 in McCosh 10 on the University campus. The film is sponsored by the Friends of The Art Museum and the Friends of Music in conjunction with the Carnegie Hall Association.

Early in 1979, Isaac Stern accepted an invitation from Foreign minister Huang Hua to visit China in the summer of 1979 as an official guest of the government. The objective of the trip was to meet with the people and his fellow musicians and to give a concert and master class or two, as Mr. Stern said, "first as musicians, then as friends."

A group of American friends who were interested in China believed that this first visit by a major solo musical artist of world stature would mark a turning point in the history of cultural relations between China and the West, and thought that it should be documented for future generations.

These friends formed the Harmony Film Group, which had received the approval of both Isaac Stern and the Chinese Government to film a nonprofit documentary film. The profits are to be divided among Carnegie Hall, a fund to further the exchange of music and musicians between China and the West, and cooperating cultural institutions.

In April of 1981 the film was awarded an Oscar as the best feature-length documentary film. At the same time, it opened in New York, Boston, Los Angeles, and San Francisco to wide critical acclaim.

There will be an admission charge of $5 for adults and $2.50 for students at the door. Proceeds will benefit the three sponsoring organizations. The film is being shown in conjunction with the exhibition, "Shadows of Mt. Huang: Chinese Painting and Printing from the Anhui School," which opens at The Art Museum December 13 and continues through January 24.

EXHIBITS

T. Wayne Robert's photographs of winter scenes have been selected by the Princeton University League for exhibition at 171 Broadmead, December 13 - January 22. Susan Hockaday Jones is director of the event.

The artist-photographer recently won honorable mention in the N.J. Audubon Competition at Cape May, and in the Mercer County Cultural & Heritage Commission juried show at Trenton State College. He has had a one man exhibition at the N.J. State Museum and his photos are carried by the Nassau Gallery.

Mr. Roberts teaches in the Princeton schools and his studio is in Hopewell.

An artist's reception will be held Sunday from 4:30-6:30. The exhibition hours are Monday-Fridays, 9-1.

Photographs of India and the French Pyrenees by Sooni Taraporevala are on exhibit at the Princeton University Culture Workshop in Aaron Burr Hall. The exhibit will continue through January 31, and the hours are Monday through Friday from 9 to 5.

The exhibit consists of 42 photographs taken between 1977 and 1981 in Ariege, France, and various urban and rural communities in India. Ms. Taraporevala, a native of India, came to America in 1975 as an undergraduate at Harvard University. She is currently completing a master's degree program in Cinema Studies at New York University and intends to pursue photography professionally.

The oil paintings of Anne Packard, a Cape Cod artist and former Princeton area resident, are on view at the Full House Gallery, 32 Main Street, Kingston. The exhibit will remain through January.

Also exhibited are watercolors by Joanne Augustine, Anna Continas and Pat Hutchinson; graphics and "Paper" works by Kim Kettler; and mixed media paintings by Harriet Hurwitz and Bunny Neuman.

Holiday hours at the Full House Gallery are Monday through Saturday from 10 a.m. to 9 p.m. and Sundays from noon to 4. For information call 924-4040.

Princeton Quintet to Play Fordham Away, Duke Home

Four games into this season's schedule, the Princeton basketball team has managed an even split in wins and losses at 2-2, but gained a wealth of experience in playing in tight contests decided in the final seconds. Every one so far has gone down to the wire — Oral Roberts, Rutgers, Bucknell and last Saturday night, St. John's.

The Redmen finally pulled out a 42-37 victory to the dismay of the majority in a crowd of 3,116 gathered in Jadwin, but not before the Tigers had almost stolen this one away as they did against Rutgers.

Coach Pete Carril's slowdown style forced the visitors to play Princeton's game for most of the 40 minutes, and St. John's suffered through long periods without scoring. During one eight-minute stretch, the winners managed just one basket.

Trouble was, the Tigers were having their problems too, in this tight defensive battle, missing shots, even short ones, that might have given them the commanding lead they needed.

If form holds true, they'll get more practice at trying to win the close ones this Wednesday, when they meet Fordham at 8 p.m. in the Bronx. Last year's game between the two in Jadwin took three overtimes to decide, the Rams finally squeezing out a 53-50 victory.

This year Fordham is 1-3 to date. It lost to St. John's by 20 points in the finals of the Lapchick Tournament, and to Temple by a point, 64-63, last weekend.

Saturday at 8, the Orange and Black will be back home to face Duke, and with the football team having snapped the Yale victory streak, it may be the year for the basketball team to do the same against the Blue Devils.

No other college team has been able to dominate Princeton the way Duke has over the years. In a series dating back to 1936, the Tigers have never beaten the Atlantic Coast entry in 13 tries.

The last attempt came two years ago, and fell far short as the Blue Devils embarrassed the Tigers, 81-45, at Durham. With a game coming up against highly-ranked Virginia on Wednesday, Duke is 1-2 to date with its lone victory coming against La Salle.

Duke lost two starters from a team that finished 17-13 last year, and only 6-8 in ACC play. Vince Taylor, who averaged just under 15 points last year, is expected to be the big play man this season.

St. John's Learns. St. John's tried to play its game in the first half, which goes at a considerably faster tempo than Princeton's. When that failed, producing nine turnovers, and a 21-17 halftime lead for the Tigers, it became more patient and eventually the slower tempo paid off.

Behind a 10-point first half effort by Craig Robinson, Princeton had things going its way, but after the intermission, the Redmen turned the momentum around. Robinson managed just four more points on two for five shooting, while junior David Russell led the Redmen back into a lead they never relinquished.

Russell, who finished with a game high 22 points, found the going a lot easier once Rich Simkus drew his fourth personal foul with 10:41 to go. Carrill was forced to take his big man out for several minutes, and St. John's was able to go inside to Russell. The Tigers have had troubles with fouls in every contest so far.

St. John's held on to its slim lead through the last eight minutes of the game. It scored its final field goal with more than four and a half minutes remaining to make it 36-33, but good foul shooting by Russell and Williams provided the margin of victory.

Tiger sub Kevin Mullin had a chance to bring his team within one at the four-minute mark, but missed both. Gordon Enderle made both ends of a one-and-one with 53 seconds to make it 39-37, but the Orange and Black was forced to foul and St. John's canned its last three chances to seal the victory.

Bucknell Beaten. Luckily for the Tiger basketball team, it escaped the fate of the hockey squad, which had to settle for a tie against a lesser opponent, sandwiched between two bigger name teams.

It's not surprising that the Orange and Black quintet would be something less than enthusiastic about a midweek trip to Lewisburg, Pa. between the Rutgers and St. John's contests.

Bucknell, of course, was primed for an upset, and very nearly pulled it off, after the Bengals appeared to have matters under control with a 38-26 lead with 10 minutes left.

The Bisons, aided by several fouls called against Princeton, rallied to cut the deficit to 38-36. But the Tigers managed to hit a key basket each time it was needed to stay just a few points in front the rest of the way.

Simkus and Billy Ryan both fouled out of the contest in the final minutes, and the latter's ball handling ability was missed near the end. However, Enderle, who enjoyed another good night with 13 points, hit on a three-point play with 44 seconds remaining to put the game out of reach, 53-47. The final was 57-49.

Craig Robinson, who has emerged as the Tigers' big point man, collected 23. Simkus added 10.

HUN IN TOURNAMENT

At Peddie. The 1981-82 model of the Hun School basketball team will be unveiled this weekend when Hun participates in the annual, eight-team Peddie Tournament in Hightstown.

Last year, Hun, which had only one player, sophomore Paul Franzoni, with any varsity experience — and that limited — struggled to 9-16 under new coach Bob Hendrickson. They beat Peddie by 20 points in the first round of the state tournament, but lost both their games in the Peddie Tourney. This season, with a year's experience under its belt, Hun should do better.

"I'm very encouraged at this point," said Hendrickson last week, after scrimmages with West Windsor and St. Pius X from Piscataway. Ahead lay more pre-season tests with Montgomery, Pingry and Hopewell Valley.

Optimism But No Prognosis. "We'll take them one at a time. I'm not looking down the road but I am optimistic," says Hendrickson. "I think we can win."

Into the Peddie Tournament, which lists Peddie, Hun, Hill School, Valley Forge, Adelphi and Collegiate of New York, Pennington School and Princeton Day School as its combatants, Hendrickson will bring a squad of three seniors, nine juniors — and one freshman, 5-9 Terry Dearden.

The team captain is 6-2 forward Kris Wronski, an excellent defensive player, says Hendrickson, "who is coming into his own this year." At the other starting forward will be last year's high scorer, the six-foot Franzoni, a good inside player. "He's not great outside," commented Hendrickson, "but he'll really be tough when he becomes a good perimeter shooter."

Marlatt at Center. At center for the Raiders will be another junior Andrew Marlatt, the big guy at 6-3, also strong inside.

Returning at guard will be junior Stuart Tucker, 5-8, who ran the fast break for Hun very well and who, says Hendrickson, "is very quick on defense." The other starting guard will be 6-1 Mark Murphy, a post graduate student from West Windsor, who Hendrickson describes as an excellent shooter and good ball handler.

Two other players certain to see action are juniors Paul Pintella and Jon Tesser. Both are 5-9 and both played on the varsity last year. Others on the squad include 6-3 senior Bob Spellman, juniors Dean Forman (6-0), Martin Sumners and Gary Marder, both 5-9, and Nick Amoroso, another six-footer.

The one thing Hun lacks, observed Hendrickson, is "one big man" but Franzoni, Marlatt, Murphy and Wronski can all dunk the ball he added. The team has balance.

"All Fairly Even." "They're all fairly even; I don't see anybody as our most

Hockey Team Hopes to Have Better Luck in League Play; Will Meet Defending Champion Yale in Baker Saturday

The Princeton hockey team, which has not distinguished itself in non-league play to date, will play its first league contest this Saturday night at 7:30 in Baker Rink against defending Ivy champion Yale.

Prior to that the Tigers will once again be on the road against another Division I powerhouse, Providence, this Wednesday evening. Providence is currently 2-3, having lost to Northeastern and New Hampshire.

The Elis will come into Baker Rink no worse than 5-1, and possibly undefeated in five games, pending the outcome of their game against Boston University on Wednesday in New Haven. The Bulldogs opened the season with a 12-3 rout of Army, knocked off a good Colgate team, and then beat Alaska.

Their most impressive victories, however, came last weekend when they scored back-to-back triumphs on the road against Clarkson and St. Lawrence.

After winning the Ivy title last year for the first time since league play was formalized, Yale had been picked to finish no higher than fourth (behind Cornell, Harvard and Princeton) in a pre-season coaches poll. Its three top scorers from last year all return, along with four capable defensemen, but Yale figured to have problems in the goal.

Instead, Paul Tortorella is doing a fine job in place of Mark Rodrigues who graduated.

Northeastern Wins. Last Saturday evening in Baker, Princeton managed to stay with a fine Northeastern squad for just about half the contest, before the visitors pulled away to an 8-2 win.

The winners scored at 3:16 of the first period and again at 8:52 to take a 2-0 lead, but Ed Lee brought the Tigers to within one at 13:42, assisted by Ross Lambert and Dave Clark.

Jim Matthews sent home the tying score with a little over two and a half minutes gone in the second, assisted by Keith Benker and Scott Billedeau, but 2-2 was the high point of the night for the Orange and Black. Northeastern registered three more goals in the second, and added another three in the third.

The Huskies had 36 shots on goalie Ron Dennis, 17 coming in the last period alone, when their pinpoint passing set up numerous shots from the slot. The Tigers, in contrast, had their best effort in the first period with 11 shots on goal, but could manage just 12 in the second and third periods combined.

It's not easy to play teams such as Boston College, Northeastern and Providence, and in between be mentally ready to skate just as hard against a Division II school like New Haven. However, it didn't take the Tigers long to find out last Wednesday evening that the visitors had definitely come to play.

Just 3:29 into the first period with Todd Hewett in the penalty box, the Chargers found the range, and 19 seconds later with the teams at full strength, they made it 2-0. The goals were scored against sophomore goalie Clif McClellan, who was tabbed for the starting assignment in place of Dennis to get some much needed experience. Dennis replaced him at 12:49 of the first period. McClellan made six saves before he left, Dennis had 13.

To its credit, the Orange and Black fought back to gain a deadlock, not once but twice in the wild first period. Jim Matthews opened the scoring for Princeton at 5:16 with the Tigers enjoying a man advantage, assisted by Lee. Six minutes later, the Bengals turned a penalty on Tom Hagerstrom to their advantage when Dave Clark fed Ross Lambert in front of the net to make it 2-2.

Separate Princeton penalties to Drew Forbes and Hewett resulted in a four on three power play for New Haven less than a minute later and the visitor's third goal. They made it 4-2 at 15:03.

Again the Tigers made up the two-goal deficit, with co-captain Ray Casey credited with both tallies. Paul Matthews and Rob Scheurer set him up on the first at 16:41, and at 18:53 he tied it, again assisted by Paul Matthews and Forbes.

The second period was calm by comparison, the only score coming with just 14 seconds left when Lambert notched his second from right in front of the crease on a pass from Clark.

The Tigers held on to their 5-4 lead for about seven minutes into the final period. The Chargers tied it at 7:08, about 30 seconds after Jim Matthews had been sent off for slashing.

It stayed that way through the rest of the final stanza, and a 10-minute overtime session as well. Princeton had several good opportunities, but could not turn one into a score. Tiger shots hit the crossbar twice in the third period, and just half a minute into the overtime freshman Steve MacDonald came within an inch of turning on the red light.

consistent scorer," said Hendrickson. "All have had equal opportunities to score in scrimmages."

On offense, Hun likes to run. "We like a transition game and when we can run we do," said Hendrickson. "It's a matter of wanting to do it, of having a positive attitude about it. A lot of kids are afraid to run because they don't have confidence in their ability."

While Hun certainly has gained in experience over the year, Hendrickson observed that he doesn't know what everyone else has, a major reason why he is reluctant to make any predictions. "Kids grow and improve a lot from their sophomore to junior years," he said. "I don't know how much the opposition has improved."

The scheduled is a tough one, especially so for a school of Hun's size, and it includes such larger schools as Lawrenceville, Lawrence High, Steinert, Hamilton and Princeton High.

There is no formal prep school league. "The only thing we'll all be doing during the year is jockeying for position to get into the state tournament" remarked Hendrickson. By season's end, he hopes to have Hun near the top of the pack.

HOME OPENER FRIDAY

For PHS Quintet. The Princeton High School basketball team will open a 19-game season Friday night when it plays host to always-strong Franklin Township High School.

"We're hopeful," said PHS coach Marv Trotman. The opening tap is set for 8.

Last week in preseason scrimmages, the Little Tigers defeated Hillsborough and lost to Rancocas Valley. They also have scheduled meetings with New Brunswick and East Brunswick before the opener.

Trotman's probable starting lineup will include returning veteran Larry McKellar, Tim Kennedy, Jerry Ingram, Marc Shapiro, the point guard, and Paul Keaney. Dave Barclay, the veteran guard, is still another week away from seeing any action, Trotman reported. Barclay has been sidelined with a finger injury.

Off the first two scrimmages, Trotman was able to comment: "We looked pretty good; I was pleased."

Some strengths included good ball movement, good shot selection and good rebounding. "If we can keep our emphasis on that I think we'll do all right," predicted Trotman.

There was no one individual player who stood out, Trotman added. "We looked good collectively."

After the Franklin opener, PHS will play Somerville away next Wednesday and then break for the holidays. It will greet 1982 with a January 4 contest against powerful Trenton High.

SEASON UNDERWAY

For Hun Wrestlers. When the Hun School wrestling team was compiling a 6-12 record last year — much to the dismay of coach Hank Barber who had hopes of leading the Raiders to a .500 season — one of the major reasons for the poor effort was not hard to find: Hun was consistently forced to forfeit the 180-pound and heavyweight classes.

New coach Dave Faus thinks he has that problem licked. "I don't want to be overly optimistic," says Faus. "We have a good tournament team and I'm looking forward to a .500 season." But he concedes that Hun still has weaknesses at both ends. The 98 and 105-pound classes and 180 and heavyweight are weak, he says, "mainly due to inexperience. From 119 to 167 we're solid."

Faus and his Raiders will see plenty of action in the opening week. This Wednesday afternoon at 3:30, Hun will entertain Admiral Farragut and Rutgers Prep in a triangular meet. On Friday it will travel to Pingry for a dual meet and then on Tuesday afternoon at 4 it will host New Hope and Solebury in another triangular meet.

Hun will also face Pennington, Warlaw and Peddie the following week and participate in the Mercer County Tournament before the month ends.

Welcome!

Although you may weigh the same as you did in high school, what is your muscle-to-fat ratio? Have you lost muscle and put on extra fat? The scale is n'ot an accurate measurement of your present fitness level. Look in your mirror Do you like what you see? If not—Exercise!

Exercise improves the tone and quality of muscle tissue, aids in digestion and metabolism, strengthens blood vessels, lungs and the heart We believe physical fitness correlates directly with mental fitness—the body being en outward reflection of the mind. How do you feel? Then, how do you look?

Physical activity is an effective difuser of the stress commonly associated with the business world. Stress-related problems such as heart attacks and ulcers can be overcome by physicel exercise: the rythmic movement of major muscle groups during physical exercise results in an immediate lowering of blood pressure, strengthens the heart muscle, creates an overall sense of well-being and dissolves mental fatigue. Being fit gives you a certain "healthy glow", an attractiveness and energy that enhances your personality

More than halt of all deaths in this country are from coronary heart disease. Tension and stress, obesity, high blood pressure, high cholesterol, diabetes and smoking are all contributing factors to heart disease and simply reflect poor habits. A regular fitness program can reduce the risk of coronary heart disease. Also, exercise helps you achieve greater sport skills, decreases chronic ailments, prevents injuries and often many illnesses, and improves the quality of every day living.

A variety of sports can reduce your body fat level and is good for weight reduction Bicycling, golfing, downhill skiing, skating, tennis and walking are low-intensity exercises with a duration longer than 30 minutes. But complete fitness involves more than a round of golf Although jogging, tennis, and golf will contribute to a measureable level of fitness, to be really fit, you must have above average levels of strength (strength relates highly to your overall fitness), flexibility, cerdio-respiretory endurence and a below average emount of body fat.

To achieve cardio-vascular health, low body fat percentage, strength and flexibility, a high-intensity exercise is necessary and only lasts 20 to 30 minutes, two to three times a week.

Next week: What is high-intensity exercise?

and 138 pounds, are co-captains of the Hun team and Faus says, "I'm looking forward to both doing very well." They are seniors.

Sophomore Chris Black, who wrestled on the varisty as a freshman, will compete this winter at 155 or 167 and junior Rick Gallin returns at 119 pounds. Another returning veteran is junior Larry Falls; he will wrestle at 128 pounds.

Two promising newcomers include senior Dusty Collen, who will wrestle in the upper weights, and junior Yahan Kayali, from Madrid, Spain, in his first year at Hun. Although Kayali has had no previous experience, Faus reported that he looked good wrestling heavyweight in a scrimmage last week with Hightstown. "He's strong," said Faus.

Last year, Faus pointed out, Hun lost six matches by six points or less while giving away 12. Had Hun won those meets it would have turned its season around. "Any forecasting on Hun's prospects this year — particularly that .500 season — will be based, said Faus, on Hun not having to forfeit anymotches.

A Princeton resident, Fous is o 1976 graduate of Hun where he wrestled in the 141-pound class. After graduating from Kenyon College in Ohio, he spent a year os on ossistant wrestling coach at a privote school in Maryland before coming hack to Hun this foll.

His assistant is Phil Noyovitz, who did his college wrestling at Temple. This is also his first year at Hun.

Princeton Names New Baseball Coach: O'Connell Now Batting for Torborg

In baseball it's similar to being announced as a pinch hitter, but being removed before seeing a pitch, because the opposing team changes pitchers.

Jeff Torborg was announced as Princeton University's new haseball coach last year, but never saw a pitch. Torborg took himself out of the Tigers' line-up earlier this fall when Yankee owner George Steinbrenner changed his pitch and offered him a lucrative contract. "It was an offer I couldn't refuse," Torborg commented.

That left Athletic Director Bob Myslik with a hole in his line-up, and he turned to Tom O'Connell, who had been his second choice after Torhorg. The head coach at Brandeis University for the past nine seasons, O'Connell is excited about the challenge of coming to a Division I college (Brandeis is Division III) and the stiffer competition in New Jersey.

"My general impression is that there is a looseness that pervades the entire program," he commented. "What I'd like to do is tighten the reins and see if the material there can do the job."

O'Connell will be the third coach in three years to direct the Tigers on the diamond. Len Rivers finished up several seasons as coach in 1980, Torborg was hired in August, 1980, hut had to finish up his contract with the Yankees. Dick Hartnett, at Torhorg's suggestion, filled in as interim manager for a year (1981) and led the Orange and Black to a 13-21-1 mark

PDS TO PLAY NEWARK

In Season's Opener. It's a time of transition again for the Princeton Doy basketball team, set to play its opening game of the season this Wednesday ot home agoinst Newark Academy.

In the first yeors of vorsity basketboll during the late sixties ond eorly seventies, the team, more often than not, finished with losing records against prep school competition. Along came Alan Toback, and things began to change.

Taback gave the Panthers a winning record for the first time, nnd slowly built the team into one of the top 20 in the state. Weak prep school opponents were discarded in favor of top-rated high schools as the Blue and White regularly won 20 or more games a season. To keep PDS on a par with the better teams, Taback recruited players from the Trenton area. Randy Melville, who went on to play for Pete Carril at Princeton, was one of Taback's best finds.

With Taback's departure last year, the Panthers fell to a 6-12 mark, still saddled with a very tough schedule, but not the personnel to match it.

Now in his second year, coach Gordon Stevenson is attempting to keep the winning tradition, but on a less high-powered scale. All but one high school has been replaeed as the Panthers return to playing prep school competition.

Unfortunately, Stevenson has even less to work with this year than last, when he lost six seniors from a team that was basically inexperienced. Co-captain Jeff Perlman is the only returning player from last year's squad.

The other co-captain, senior Steve Eisenstein, did not play basketball last year. He will team with a pair of sophomores, Jamie Zahner ond Andrew Bing, to form a three-guard offense.

"We don't have a guy tall enough to be a center," Stevenson explained. Perlman is the tallest starter at 6'1, freshman Stuart Magruder at 6'4 is the tallest on the squad, but he needs some playing experience.

The other forward will be a freshman, Jon McConaughy, who transferred from East Amwell this year. He already has shown his skills as a split end on the football team.

Rounding out the squad are seniors John Vine and Mark Roth, junior Eric Schweibert, sophomores Dave Stifel and Scott Roberts. Roberts, if he stays healthy, could be a help. Last year he missed the basketball season with a broken leg, this year he suffered a concussion in practice in September and had to miss the whole football season.

Stevenson is optimistic about the season. "We're young and inexperienced, but the boys are working hard, and looked pretty good in our opening scrimmage against Hopewell," he commented. "We should be in good shape by mid-season.

After the Newark game Wednesday, the Panthers will play in the annual Peddie Tournament this weekend. Other schools entered in addition to the host team include, Pennington, Hill, Collegiate and Adelphi.

SOCCER TITLE CLINCHED

By Sweet Jersey Corn. With one week of play remaining, Sweet Jersey Corn last week clinched the championship of the Mercer County Women's Soccer League with a 2-0 shutout of Dario's.

After an even first half, the Corn outshot its opponent, 10-1, in the second half when it scored both its goals, the tallies coming off shots by Carey Crutcher and Anne Knudson-Fitzpatrick. Karen Petrusca, who had been injured the past four weeks, returned to action for the Corn and responded with a strong performance at fullback. Goalie Sallie Toscano was credited with the shutout.

Sweet Jersey Corn will play its last game of the season Sunday at noon against Bottoms Up at Mercer County's Central Park. Under

Ivy League Teams Forced Out of Division I-A Football by Vote of Major Football Powers

Twenty-seven years ago, worried about the implications of bigtime football, the eight Ivy Presidents banded together and agreed upon a set of limitations that forever changed the sport for their institutions.

In effect, what they said was — we don't want to conduct our football programs the way the rest of you guys are. We are henceforth banning spring practice, post-season bowl appearances and most importantly athletic scholarships.

The rules were designed to de-emphasize football at the eight Ivy colleges, and they have certainly done the job. Now 27 years later, the Ivies are being forced to pay a price for that decision.

Last Friday in St. Louis the majority of the 137 Division I-A colleges voted that its members must fulfill one of two requirements to stay in I-A for football -- an average home attendance of 17,000 over the last four years, or a home stadium capacity of 30,000 and only one year over the 17,000 mark. The move was specifically designed to squeeze out the smaller colleges, thus giving those remaining a better shot at more television revenue.

Four Ivy teams, Brown, Columbia, Cornell and Dartmouth, do not meet either of those requirements. Princeton and Penn qualify on the basis of the sizes of their seating capacity, but not attendance. Harvard and Yale qualify on both counts. Naturally, all eight decided to stay together.

How much will it hurt the Ivy football programs? No one can say for sure. Yale's coach Carmen Cozza says "If we can still play the kind of teams we have been playing and it doesn't hurt our recruiting, I could care less if it says I-A or 20-A. That doesn't make any difference.

"What matters is what effect it will have on recruiting, publicity and TV appearances. I don't think we'll know that until we go through a couple of years."

"We will not reduce our commitment to football," Princeton athletic director Bob Myslik said Monday. Myslik feels the major loss to Princeton will not be in revenue or recruits, but in prestige.

So, next fall the Ivy teams will find themselves no longer in the same division as USC, Penn State, and Notre Dame, but side by side with colleges such as Delaware and Maine. Either of those two teams sound familiar? The Tigers lost a lost more prestige on the football field this fall against those two, than they'll lose by their Division I-AA status.

But, it's not surprising that the Ivy coaches and athletic directors are concerned with this new problem. It may make the annual task of fielding a quality football team that much more difficult. Whether higher level officials in the University administration are concerned, too, is another matter.

But there is one very real concern here at Princeton they should have. Attendance at Palmer Stadium has been dropping steadily for several years, and the return to winning football has not made a difference.

In 1949, 1958 and 1967, Princeton finished with a 6-3 record, and averaged between 28-32,000 for six home games. In 1980 it had six home games, a 6-4 mark, and average crowds of just over 10,000, the lowest ever. This season it drew 58,669 for five home games, another all-time low. Now that's something to worry about, no matter what division label you stick on the Tigers.

JADWIN GYM IS SITE Of Women's Squash Tournament. The 4th Annual Women's Intercollegiate Invitational Squash Tournament will be held this weekend at Princeton University's Jadwin Gym.

Sixteen of the top college players from Princeton, Yale, Harvard, University of Pennsylvania, Brown, Trinity, Vassar, Franklin & Marshall, Johns Hopkins and the University of California will compete.

Nina Porter of Trinity is seeded No. 1 and Penn's Karen Kelso, the current Pennsylvania state champion, is seeded second. Zerline Goodman of Yale and Patrice McConnell of Princeton are seeded third and fourth respectively.

Play begins Friday evening at 6 with matches on Saturday from 9 to 5. On Sunday, the finals start at 10 a.m. when three matches will determine the top six players in the tournament. Admission to all matches is free.

HOCKEY TOURNEY SET For December 17-18. The Lawrenceville 34th annual school hockey tournament will be held December 17 and 18, at the Baker and Lavino Rinks. Participating schools include: Belmont Hill, Crescent School (Canada), Hill School, Kent, Lawrenceville, Loomis-Chaffee, Nichols and St. Paul's. Princeton area boys playing on the Lawrenceville School team are: Craig McClelland, goalie; John McCormick and Jeff Nason.

FIRST OF 20 TUESDAY For PHS Girls Basketball Team. The Princeton High School girl's basketball team, coached by Joyce Jones, will begin a 20-game schedule Tuesday night when it opens at Hamilton High.

The Little Tigers, who will be striving to improve on last year's 3-17 record, will then play town rival PDS the following day in its home opener before breaking for the holidays. PHS counted Princeton Day among one of its three victims last year.

CHAIRS ARE FEATURED

In Historical Society Exhibit. The Princeton Historical Society's exhibition of legendary chairs from Princeton area collections will open Tuesday at Bainbridge House. Included in the exhibit will be a chair owned by Chopin and another owned by Jonathan Edwards.

The exhibition, entitled "Princeton Sat Here" will feature 20 chairs from the 18th, 19th and 20th centuries which show the transition from the colonial period to the present.

All of the chairs have a history of use in Princeton houses such as Morven, Tusculum, Palmer House and Guernsey Hall and were owned by the Stocktons, Potters, Gulicks and Marquands. Several were owned by John Witherspoon, Paul Tulane and the Bainbridge Family.

The Chopin chair was purchased in Paris at the sale of the composer's estate by Prof. Arnold Guyot and donated to the Historical Society. A bench from the Quaker Meeting House and a series of diminutive chairs in various styles will also be on display.

During the exhibit, visitors will also see Bainbridge House in its holiday dress, decorated in various greens and fruits. Decorations in the children's museum include a small tree trimmed in homemade ornaments and a miniature village.

Bainbridge House is open free of charge Tuesdays through Sundays from noon to 4. The book and gift shop is also stocked with special items for Christmas giving.
